RUSSIA FAILS TO ANSWER YANK

Chinese Nationalists Facing New Threats As 2 Million Communists Start Offensive

NANKING, Sept. 30—Two million Communist troops are reported on the march today in a new general offensive aimed at winning control of all China.

The Red armies already have scored one major victory—the capture of Tsinan, capital of the strategic and economically important province of Shantung.

Tsinan fell to the Communists despite the defense efforts of one of the Nationalist government's ablest commanders, Gen. Wang Yao-Wu, military governor of Shantung.

The city was captured after Communist General Chen Yi, deploying an estimated 100,000 troops, cut the railroad south of Tsinan and blocked all Nationalist effort to send in reinforcements.

Foreign observers feel that initiative in China's civil war now has shifted to the Communist side.

They state that, while the government has an estimated three-to-two advantage in manpower, the Communists possess superior leadership and morale, plus effective guerrilla support from the peasantry.

The elimination of any strategic Nationalist reserve capable of delivering a knockout blow to Red armies on a selected front is regarded as the most significant setback for the government military machine during the past year. Nationalist forces now are primarily grouped only for defensive action.

Communist armies are reported to be experiencing supply shortages. Japanese stocks of materiel seized or turned over to the Communists by the Russians during their withdrawal from Manchuria are said to be running low.

In Manchuria, where the Communists with some 400,000 troops outnumber the Nationalists about 3 to 1, the Manchurian capital of Changchun is "dying on the vine."

Surrounded by Communists who control the airfields, the city—with a starving civilian population and a Nationalist garrison of about 70,000—is ripe for capitulation this Winter.

In Central China, government leaders are keeping a worried eye on the over 100,000 Red troops under the command of one-eyed general, Liu Po-Chun. With Central China virtually stripped of Nationalist troops north of the Yangtze and east of the Hsuchow concentrations, Liu Po-Chun is given ample room for maneuver.

A Communist crossing in force of the Yangtze river for penetration of South China is expected if the Communists succeed in capturing or reducing the Nationalist forces defending such points as surrounded Taiyuan, Chengchow which is threatened by Liu Po-Chun, Tsinan and heavily-defended Hsuchow.

Monday Set To Hear Berlin Issue

Dangers Cited In Discussion

PARIS, Sept. 30—The United Nations Security Council was called today to meet at 3 p. m. Monday to consider the Berlin dispute.

Warren R. Austin of the United States, who takes over the chairmanship at that time, called the session to discuss Western charges that Russia's blockade is a threat to peace.

The call was issued shortly after the UN political committee adjourned suddenly when Russia refused an immediate reply to American charges that the Soviets are blocking efforts to establish international atomic energy control.

The charge in the political committee had been levelled by Austin himself.

Criticism still circulated meanwhile over the dangers created by the Western Power move in handing the Berlin dispute over to the UN.

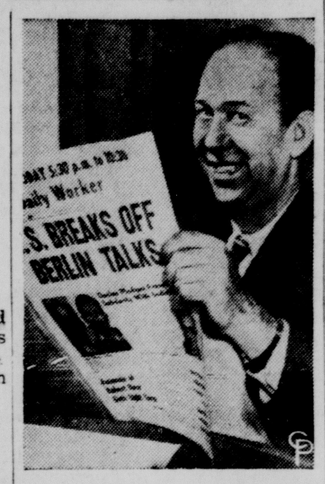

• • •

HOWEVER, Republican Foreign Affairs Expert John Foster Dulles voiced the U. S. viewpoint in a speech in Paris last night when he explained that peace cannot be attained without some risks.

Dulles pointed out that for this reason it would be "grotesque to proceed on the theory that the United Nations should or can be sheltered from risks inherent" in seeking peace.

Meanwhile a survey of the past 10 days of debate confirmed earlier fears that the East-West rift and resultant "cold war" is far from solution.

Opinion of the majority of delegates is that recent debate has opened new wounds and deepened old ones.

ORGANIZER for the Communist Party in Pittsburgh, Steve Nelson grins as he reads in The Daily Worker that the House UnAmerican Activities Committee, which claims he obtained secret atomic information for the Russians, has been refused prosecution by the Justice Department.

Atom Energy Talk Leaves Reds Silent

Vishinsky Sits Dumb In UN

PARIS, Sept. 30—One of the most dramatic sessions in United Nations history found Russia unwilling or unprepared today to answer charges she is blocking atomic energy control.

The organization's political committee was adjourned abruptly at the request of Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky.

He had passed up chance after chance to reply to U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin. Discussing Soviet objections to a majority report by the UN Atomic Energy Commission calling for international inspection and control of atomic weapons, Austin said:

"Fear has replaced hope because the Soviet Union has insisted upon placing sovereignty above control."

When the U. S. representative had finished his address, all eyes turned toward Vishinsky.

The Russian deputy foreign minister remained silent.

Committee Chairman Premier Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium gave Vishinsky every opportunity to speak.

The dropping of a pin could have been heard in the crowded, stuffy conference room.

• • •

THIRTY seconds passed, all eyes still on the bespectacled Russian.

Spaak then asked:

"Are there no speakers?"

Another 20 seconds elapsed.

Visibly surprised by the continued silence, Spaak asked for the second time:

"Does nobody wish to speak?"

The silence became embarrassing. Finally Hector David Castro of El Salvador, rose and said:

"In the absence of any one asking for the floor, I do not want the impression to prevail that we have no interest in the control of atomic energy. It is just to break the ice that I am speaking."

When he concluded the committee again found itself in a dilemma.

The situation tried the usual good humor of Dr. Jose Arce, Atomic Energy Commission member, and the Argentinian nervously asked Spaak to move a vote on a Canadian resolution calling on the General Assembly to approve the atom commission's reports.

He requested the vote since there were no speakers, he said, and "otherwise we will be here until Christmas."

Then Vishinsky made his announcemetnt requesting a delay. Spaak admitted Vishinsky's request was in accordance with procedure.

This failed to convince Arce who, more nervous than ever, asked that the committee discuss other items. Spaak said he refused to mix issues and adjourned the committee until 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

• • •

AUSTIN took the occasion while addressing the committee to refute previous declarations by Vishinsky that the U. S. itself refused to submit to atom control. He insisted that "this is contrary to fact."

Austin reminded the political committee that the U. S. Congress had passed the Atom Control Act of 1946. He also cited

Dewey Plans Major Talk

Dictators Warned Of U. S. Unity

SALT LAKE CITY, Sept. 30—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey put the finishing touches today on a cautiously-worded foreign policy address designed to chart a new course in world affairs without compromising America's stand on the Berlin crisis.

The Republican presidential candidate kept his prepared speech open for revision to cover any last-minute changes in the tense Berlin situation before he speaks here tonight.

Dewey maintained contact by United Nations telotype with John Foster Dulles, his foreign adviser who now is in Paris as a delegate to the UN General Assembly session.

His address tonight, it was understood, will not "rock the boat" on the showdown with Russia or go far beyond what Dewey already has said concerning the Berlin situation on his 8,000-mile campaign tour.

But the GOP nominee is expected to go into greater detail on his proposal for a United Nations of Europe and for a new China policy.

In a speech before 5,000 persons in Great Falls, Mont., last night, Dewey warned "trigger-happy militarists" not to bank on political disunity in America. He said:

• • •

"LET'S SEND this message from Great Falls to Paris, and beyond Paris through the iron curtain: The Republican Party is engaged in this campaign for the express purpose of bringing our people closer, so that they can realize their great future and find peace with honor in the world. And let no dictator, or trigger-happy militarist anywhere make any mistake about that purpose."

Meanwhile, in Carbondale, Ill., President Truman warned about what he termed "the danger of reaction that confronts this country."

Stopping here en route to deliver a major address in Louisville, Ky., tonight, the President declared:

"We Democrats, have been working for the people—for all the people—for the past 16 years.

"For 14 of those 16 years, the Democratic President was supported by a Democratic Congress. We were able to go steadily forward in fulfilling our pledges to the people.

"And then in 1946, something happened—something bad and dangerous.

"That was the year of the congressional elections, when most of the people stayed home and failed to vote.

"Those who did vote gave you a Republican Congress—the notorious Republican 80th Congress that has done its best to RAILROAD WAS THE LOSER, but the kids of Valley Park, Mo., were the big winners when 34 cars of a Frisco freight train piled up in this spectacular fashion. One of the smashed cars was loaded with candy, a child's dream come true. However, school officials reported that 300 children showed up with more candy than they could eat. Three ate so much they got sick.

U. S. Appeal Under Study

Reds Too Slow Returning Ships

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—The United States is studying the possibility today of appealing to the International Court of Justice at The Hague to recover naval vessels loaned to Russia during the war.

The vessels involved are three icebreakers, 28 frigates and several lesser ships which were turned over to the Soviets under lend-lease during the war.

To date repeated demands for the vessels have been ignored by Moscow. A final and formal demand was made several weeks ago without result thus far.

If the ships are not returned shortly, the United States plans to recover them. Appeal to a new ace court, established under United Nations charter, is believed the most likely step.

An appeal to the court generally would be regarded as a move by the United States to press a diplomatic offensive on Moscow after years of negotiations have failed to gain any ground.

• • •

THE VESSELS are regarded as something separate in the master lend-lease agreement with the Soviets.

Russia's delay in returning the vessels is regarded by diplomats in Washington as indicating that the Kremlin wishes to use them in its own armament program.

In fact, some observers believe that Russia's reluctance to reach a settlement agreement on the $11 billion of lend-lease supplied her is due to an unwillingness to abide by restrictions which have been included in earlier settlements.

For instance, each other settlement has provided that arms and munitions still in the hands of the foreign power are to be regarded as the property of the United States. Title may not be transferred to a third power without Washington's consent.

If Russia were so restricted, she would be legally barred from transferring American guns and equipment to satellite powers with which she has military pacts.

Russia is the only major power which has not reached a lend-lease settlement, although American terms have been extremely lenient for repayment.

Berlin Red Says Airlift May Be Split By Force

BERLIN, Sept. 30—A Berlin Communist leader intimated today that the Russians may try to halt the Anglo-American supply airlift by force.

Hermann Matern, co-chairman of the Communist-controlled Socialist Unity Party (SED), charged at a "rump" session of the Communist-controlled bloc of the city assembly that the Western leaders are trying to divide the city with "barbed wire."

In connection with the aerial supply shuttle to Soviet-blockaded Western Berlin, he said:

"The airlift will have an end one way or another. This fantastic nonsense can't be allowed to continue—it can't have any permanence. The unity of Berlin and Germany will be established only when the splitters and war mongers are sent home."

Panel Hits Clark's Snub

'Deliberate' Move Claimed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Rep. McDowell, (R) Pa., charged today that the Justice Department "deliberately" drew up indictments against 12 Communist leaders "in such a way that they can not be made to stick."

The acting chairman of the House UnAmerican Activities Committee stated that the 12 men accused of conspiring to overthrow the government by force and violence are "practically certain of not being punished."

The Communist leaders, now free on bail awaiting trial, were indicted by a federal grand jury in New York after more than a year of investigation.

McDowell struck back sharply at Tom Clark's Justice Department for accusing the House spy probers of engaging in "political activity" in their investigation of Soviet atomic espionage.

• • •

McDOWELL'S attack was prompted by a formal Justice Department statement accusing the committee of attempting "to dictate" what cases should be prosecuted.

The Justice Department statement followed release Monday of a formal report by the committee urging the prosecution of four Americans—two atom scientists, the former wife of one, and a Communist leader — for conspiracy to give Russia wartime atomic secrets.

The department stated that it did not have sufficient evidence on which to base indictments, adding that "hearsay testimony and committee conclusions cannot be substituted for legal proof." It said the committee was "incompetent."

The committee now is engaged in a running battle with President Truman and the Justice Department over its spy investigation.

Monty Expected To Get Top Post In Union

LONDON, Sept. 30 — Britain's cabinet is expected to approve today the nomination of Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery as military chairman of the Western European Union Defense Council.

Authoritative quarters say that Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, definitely is slated for the post of commander-in-chief of the five-government high command.

The move comes as quick followup to the announcement by Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg that they had agreed on a common defense plan.

The diplomatic expert of the London Daily Telegraph pointed out that if the United States is prepared to underwrite the Western Union and the five European powers accepted the arrangement would be equivalent to a binding military alliance. Britain would require the concurrence of other commonwealth countries.

The Moscow radio declared meanwhile that the five-power program is a "clear illustration of the military character of the Western Union initiated by the United States and Britain."

Young Cyclist May Lose Leg

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—A speedy bicycle ride down a 600-foot hill into suburban Rocky River reservation may result in the loss of a leg for 13-year-old Leonard Schmotzer of Cleveland.

Young Schmotzer lost control of his bike while racing down the hill and was faced with the choice of steering off a 35-foot cliff into Rocky river or guiding his bicycle headon into a turning automobile.

He chose smashing into the car and suffered a severe compound fracture of his left leg. Doctors at Lakewood hospital reported amputation may be necessary.

Use A-Bomb, Solon Urges

'Let Reds Know How We Stand'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Sen. Eastland, (D) Miss., urged today that the United States threaten to use the atomic bomb on Russian cities unless Moscow lifts the Berlin blockade.

The Mississippi Democrat declared that if the airlift fails "we must open supply lines" to feed the two million Germans in the western zones of Berlin.

Eastland asserted that if President Truman had taken a firm stand last June, the Soviet blockade would have been called off in its infancy.

In a bitter demand for a strong policy against the Communists, the Mississippian said:

"If Russia is made to realize now that we will not permit her to starve two million people in our zones in order to strike at

Shooting Beer Bottles Off Heads Disliked

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 30 — A "game" in which the participants took turns shooting empty beer bottles off each other's head—ala William Tell—resulted today in the serious wounding of one and arrest of the other.

The "game" was being played by two Mexicans at an imported farm labor camp near New Carlisle in Clark County.

Conrad Gonzales, 31, told sheriff's deputies that he was attempting to knock a bottle off the head of Willie Rayes, 27, but instead shot Rayes in the chest. A 38-caliber pistol was used and Gonzales said several turns had been taken before the mishap.

Rayes was taken to Springfield City hospital in fair condition. Gonzales was taken to the Clark County jail for investigation.

Israeli Nabs Stern Gang Boss In Haifa

HAIFA, Sept. 30 — Friedman Yellin, long-sought leader of the notorious Stern Gang, was arrested by Israeli authorities in Haifa today.

Yellin became the object of a widespread manhunt throughout Palestine following the assassination of UN Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte outside of Jerusalem.

An organization calling itself the "Fatherland Front", described by Israeli authorities as a "sham sprinter group" of the Stern Gang, boasted responsibility for the killing on the grounds that Bernadotte was a "British agent."

Seized with Yellin was his principal aide, Mattityahu Shmuelovitz.

The two men were tracked down by Israeli police at a private residence in Haifa where he had taken shelter immediately after the assassination.

Yellin had undergone a facial operation for disguise. He was in possession of forged military documents and a passport with a valid visa for an unspecified European country.

Shmuelovitz had been sentenced to death by a British military court for Stern Gang outrages. He was among a large group of prisoners who escaped from the fortress prison at Acre north of Haifa in a mass jailbreak in May, 1947.

Mrs. Roosevelt probably was the most retiring and least publicized of President's wives.

Rev. Mr. McElroy, pastor of St. Mark's Episcopal church and leader of anti-pinball machine forces, declared he is dissatisfied with action last night by the Toledo council and asked for immediate repeal of an ordinance permitting the machines to operate.

Council last night outlawed payoff devices on the pinball machines, but the council ruling will not go into effect until March 31 of next year.

LANCASTER, Sept. 30—Fairfield County Common Pleas Judge Harry Kilburger has set Oct. 1 as the arraignment date for 24 persons under grand jury indictments for gambling and dealing in stolen meat.

Authoritative quarters say that Montgomery, chief of the British imperial general staff, definitely is slated for the post of commander-in-chief of the five-government high command.

The move comes as quick followup to the announcement by Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg that they had agreed on a common defense plan.

The diplomatic expert of the London Daily Telegraph pointed out that if the United States is prepared to underwrite the Western Union and the five European powers accepted the arrangement would be equivalent to a binding military alliance. Britain would require the concurrence of other commonwealth countries.

The Moscow radio declared meanwhile that the five-power program is a "clear illustration of the military character of the Western Union initiated by the United States and Britain."

Use A-Bomb, Solon Urges

'Let Reds Know How We Stand'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Sen. Eastland, (D) Miss., urged today that the United States threaten to use the atomic bomb on Russian cities unless Moscow lifts the Berlin blockade.

The Mississippi Democrat declared that if the airlift fails "we must open supply lines" to feed the two million Germans in the western zones of Berlin.

Eastland asserted that if President Truman had taken a firm stand last June, the Soviet blockade would have been called off in its infancy.

In a bitter demand for a strong policy against the Communists, the Mississippian said:

"If Russia is made to realize now that we will not permit her to starve two million people in our zones in order to strike at

Seized with Yellin was his principal aide, Mattityahu Shmuelovitz.

The two men were tracked down by Israeli police at a private residence in Haifa where he had taken shelter immediately after the assassination.

Yellin had undergone a facial operation for disguise. He was in possession of forged military documents and a passport with a valid visa for an unspecified European country.

Shmuelovitz had been sentenced to death by a British military court for Stern Gang outrages. He was among a large group of prisoners who escaped from the fortress prison at Acre north of Haifa in a mass jailbreak in May, 1947.

Patrolman Cited For Valor In Pair Of Chases

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Valor had its reward today in Columbus when quick-thinking, quick-shooting State Highway Patrolman James E. Mansperger received a police special revolver from Former State Highway Director O. W. Merrell.

Mansperger, whose father retired from the Columbus police force last week, received the annual award for meritorious service for his capture of two pairs of young thugs in a brace of bullet-ridden chases—one through heavy Columbus traffic.

Last Dec. 22, Mansperger's jacket was ripped by a bullet in a 70-mile-an-hour chase of two miles down Columbus East Broad street that ended with the conviction of two Wooster youths— Dennis V. Zappone and Eugene Butler—for armed robbery and auto theft.

A fusillade of shots from the hoodlums ended when their stolen car crashed against a tree. Mansperger held his fire until he was certain bystanders were safe, then poured 10 shots from a Winchester rifle into the wrecked car. The marauders surrendered.

* * *

MANSPERGER'S turn came again last May 19 when he spotted a stolen car a mile north of Worthington and followed it 15 miles through a spattering of lead, returning the fire as he drove through deserted countryside areas.

At the end of the chase northwest of Dublin, Mansperger ordered the culprits, Walter G. Queensbury and William J. Combs—two 19-year-olds from Newhall, W. Va.—to lie flat on the roadway.

Combs demurred and Mansperger slugged him with the same Winchester rifle.

Patrolman Cited For Valor In Pair Of Chases

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Valor had its reward today in Columbus when quick-thinking, quick-shooting State Highway Patrolman James E. Mansperger received a police special revolver from Former State Highway Director O. W. Merrell.

Mansperger, whose father retired from the Columbus police force last week, received the annual award for meritorious service for his capture of two pairs of young thugs in a brace of bullet-ridden chases—one through heavy Columbus traffic.

Last Dec. 22, Mansperger's jacket was ripped by a bullet in a 70-mile-an-hour chase of two miles down Columbus East Broad street that ended with the conviction of two Wooster youths— Dennis V. Zappone and Eugene Butler—for armed robbery and auto theft.

A fusillade of shots from the hoodlums ended when their stolen car crashed against a tree. Mansperger held his fire until he was certain bystanders were safe, then poured 10 shots from a Winchester rifle into the wrecked car. The marauders surrendered.

* * *

MANSPERGER'S turn came again last May 19 when he spotted a stolen car a mile north of Worthington and followed it 15 miles through a spattering of lead, returning the fire as he drove through deserted countryside areas.

At the end of the chase northwest of Dublin, Mansperger ordered the culprits, Walter G. Queensbury and William J. Combs—two 19-year-olds from Newhall, W. Va.—to lie flat on the roadway.

Combs demurred and Mansperger slugged him with the same Winchester rifle.

Seduction Case Handed To Jury

Donald Crabtree, 22, of Louisa, Ky., was bound to Pickaway County grand jury under $2,000 bond Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to seduction of a 17-year-old Ashville girl.

Magistrate Oscar Root remanded Crabtree to the county jail in default of bond payment.

A signed statement held by Sheriff Charles Radcliff admits the seduction count and also that Crabtree lived with the girl's 20-year-old sister as man and wife on a Scioto Township farm, the sheriff said.

Drivers Held For Burglary

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Piqua auto stunt drivers, Charles R. Hewitt, 20, and Robert Broderick, 19, were held to the Franklin County grand jury today for burglary, each under $5,000 bond.

Mayor William Schneider of Bexley, swank Columbus suburb, said they admitted burglarizing two Isaly stores for a loot of $634.

He said they implicated two other Piqua youths in one burglary. One of the unidentified youths is in the Franklin County juvenile center and the other still is to be apprehended.

"They don't seem to want to do anything about housing, about high prices, about Social Security and education and conservation. They are interested in one thing—the profits of big business.

Steele's case was one of 14 indictments returned last week by the September term of grand jury. Arraignment of Henry Brown of Circleville is yet to be held in common pleas court.

While John W. Bennett of Columbus was on the indicted list here, court officials said his case probably will be handled in Franklin County where he is undergoing medical treatment.

Contains NO dope, NO alcohol, NO oil. ONLY Nature's minerals, the oldest, most reliable remedy for rheumatism, arthritis, kidney and stomach ailments.

GEO-MINERAL will enrich your blood, help to make you strong, full of pep, life and energy. Lack of minerals in the blood causes anemia, headaches, nervousness. Minerals generate mental brilliancy, give sparkling eyes, red cheeks, fight disease, build up health.

RHEUMATISM, arthritis are dreadful diseases. Acid condition in the blood is often their cause. What could be the remedy? For thousands of years, minerals have been used to relieve the pain and suffering of these ills. People, on the advice of doctors, go to mineral springs to find cure, or relief. The late President Roosevelt used to go to Warm Springs in Georgia. He was helped or would not have gone there regularly twice a year.

Amazing Results

YEAR after year, people rush to mineral springs and spas, to drink and bathe in their miraculous water. We have all heard of the wondrous springs of Lourdes, France, and famous Thronion in ancient Greece where, according to legend Hercules, the god of eternal strength and youth, drank its waters and bathed to be forever young.

GEO-MINERAL contains minerals you get at the world's best springs. Watch your elimination from your bowels a day or two after using it. The waste, black as the color of your shoes, will start to break away, and you will SEE it. Also examine your urine. You may see impurities—poisonous waste—coming out of your kidneys, relieving you. And then realize the priceless value of GEO-MINERAL.

Read What They Say!

"We wish to state that after selling Geo-Mineral for eight months, this product has broken all sales records in the medicine line in our drug store"—reports Jack Wright, owner of Economy Drug Co., Anderson, S. C. "Users report almost miraculous results, helping sufferers with rheumatism, arthritis, weak kidneys, and various stomach ailments. We believe that there exist very few items on the druggists' shelf with the merit of this natural mineral medicine. Of thousands of bottles sold on guarantee basis, there have been very few refunds."

WE URGE everyone to try GEO-MINERAL. Do not hesitate one moment. Go to your drug store now. Get one bottle. Use it one week. If you are not 100 per cent satisfied, we will refund your money in full. Grass-Fed Dairy Cow Costs Cited

Pasture Costs Fourth Of Hay

It costs only about one-fourth as much to produce milk on good pasture as it costs to feed a dairy herd on grain and hay, according to local farm experts.

They base their statement on statistics cited recently by G. A. Williams of the Purdue university dairy estension department.

Emphasizing that the difference between good and poor pasture is largely a matter of management, Williams suggests these steps for improving pasture:

1—Seed high-yielding pasture mixtures that give extra grazing days in spring and fall. A good legume-grass mixture produces more milk per acre than either crop grown separately. Production records in the Noble County dairy improvement herd association last year showed that herds grazing on alfalfa-brome pasture produced more butterfat per cow than cows grazing any other kind of pasture.

* * *

2—ROTATE your grazing and avoid overgrazing. For high production, divide your pasture acreage into two or three fields. That will help eliminate overgrazing some areas while others become coarse and unpalatable.

3—Add plant nutrients so the soil can feed the legumes and grasses. During a six months' pasture season a cow removes from the soil approximately 115 pounds of nitrogen, 26 pounds of phosphate, 93 pounds of potash and 37 pounds of lime. Unless these nutrients are returned in the form of plowed-under legumes, commercial fertilizer and barnyard manure, the land becomes too poor to produce good grass.

Milk production during the Summer months will decline unless cows are fed large amounts of hay and grain. That increases production costs and lowers the dairyman's income.

"Dairymen," said Williams, "are finding it increasingly profitable to purchase commercial fertilizer to supplement the supply of barnyard manure available than it is to buy high-priced concentrates for the dairy herd."

13,000 FEET UNDER the sea, two miles deeper than man has ever plunged, is the goal of Prof. Auguste Piccard, 64-year-old Swiss physicist now readying his "bathyscaphe" in the Gulf of Guinea under Africa's left shoulder. Piccard wants to beat the 3,000-foot undersea record of Prof. William Beebe, and to get visually acquainted with whatever weird denizens lurk down there in the vast blackness. The "bathyscaphe," sketched above "in action," weighs 10 tons, is six feet, six inches in diameter, built to withstand 250,000 tons pressure. It will be put over side of steamer Scaldis. (International)

Reminds you again how important the right to vote is in this country. And it's a right we can retain only by exercising it! . . . like all the other individual liberties—from freedom to enjoy a glass of beer or ale, to a woman's right to vote along with men.

Folks can thank themselves that on summer evenings they'll be able to listen to band concerts in a well-kept park . . . enjoying a bottle of beer or soda pop (whichever they prefer). Because from where I sit, that's a freedom they've earned by exercising a still more important freedom: Voting!

Garner Against U.S. OK Of Russia Back In 1933

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Usually, the great ironies of history only become apparent several generations after their grim jokes have been perpetrated. Seldom are the living permitted to witness history's heavy hand of humor in action.

Yet there was an exception to the rule the other day when President Harry Truman breakfasted with Former Vice-President John Nance Garner at the latter's home in Uvalde, Texas.

Unquestionably, Texas Jack Garner was doing his quiet, passive bit to help the President return to the White House—even though he exhibited his customary lack of enthusiasm in so doing.

The irony of that meeting was that what Texas Jack sought to stop some 15 years ago may well become one of the chief factors this Fall in the fight against President Truman's reelection.

It is the so-called Russian question.

Whatever your personal feelings on the subject, there is little doubt that the alleged Communist infiltration into key federal positions will play a pretty important part in the forthcoming presidential election. There has been too much publicity on the issue for it to be otherwise.

* * *

IF THE President is defeated, you can chalk at least a substantial assist up to the Communist situation.

Yet, had Jack Garner had his way back in 1933, that situation probably would not exist today. He did almost everything within his power to keep America from diplomatically recognizing the then still unaccepted Soviet government. His efforts failed.

For one thing, four secretaries of state—Colby, Hughes, Kellogg and Stimson—had refused to even consider the question of Soviet recognition unless Russia fulfilled a number of obligations.

Most important of these obligations—as far as John Nance Garner was concerned—was the agreement to cease agitation for the overthrow of the American government by force.

Because he felt this to be an important issue, Texas Jack stepped out of his usual quiet role as the silent vice-president to scrap with President Roosevelt over the question.

That Garner lost that fight has long since been a matter of common knowledge, but the extent to which he waged it has not. When the late President was deepest in his dickering with the tentative envoys from Russia, Garner told him that this government should "enter into no negotiations until these (propaganda) efforts directed from Moscow are abandoned."

He also told Roosevelt that, in view, the Comintern was just as active then (in 1933) as it had been at any time in the 12 years of its existence—and that, as yet, he saw no reason whatever why it should be trusted with any prestige so internationally powerful as American recognition.

* * *

I'D HATE to see you get off on the wrong foot on this Russian business," said Texas Jack. "I'd bide my time on it. If this outfit has kept its word to anyone or done anything in good faith, I have not heard about it."

Though the cards seemed to be stacked against the famed vice-president, he managed to delay the official American recognition of the Soviet government for eight days—despite the Russian envoy's boast in Berlin enroute here that the whole business would "be settled in 30 minutes."

Rhodes Probes Bus Squabble

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Mayor James A. Rhodes and a group of other Columbus city officials were to meet this afternoon to settle a squabble over where city busses sould load and unload passengers.

Drivers for the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. descended on Rhodes en masse yesterday to protest seven tickets policemen had handed drivers for stopping more than 12 inches from the curb.

The mayor immediately scheduled a conference for yesterday afternoon between representatives of the city and the drivers. The conference produced these charges and problems.

Many bus drivers let passengers out in the middle of the street—automobiles, trucks and taxis clog up the loading zones—and it is "impossible or impractical" to unload busses in some of the zones, even when they are free of other vehicles.

Peeved Suitor Given Sentence

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—Eugene Collier, 22, was so burned up at his date that he called the fire department, a little trick which brought him 60 days in which to cool off.

Collier was sentenced for turning in a false alarm to annoy Helen Dagres, 17, with whom he had a date Monday evening.

The girl said a quarrel resulted in a five-hour series of phone calls from Collier which culminated when an ambulance showed up at her house to answer a false stabbing report and then fire engines arrived for a non-existent fire.

'Donor' Of Eye Fails To Show

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—The man who offered his eye to anyone who needs it didn't show up today to explain his actions.

The young man, who described himself as "a fellow with good vision" in a letter to The Harrisburg, Pa., Evening News, signed his name as William M. Boyle.

At the New York address, the Mills hotel, which is a cheap lodging house for transients, the manager said they didn't know of anyone by that name.

He posted a notice yesterday for Boyle, but the Good Samaritan has not come forward yet.

Charity To Get Sale Proceeds

SANDUSKY, Sept. 30 — Sandusky's Community Chest campaign will receive the proceeds from the sale of grand champion steer at the close of the Archbold Annual Fall Festival.

The Howard Waldock Packing Co. purchased the thoroughbred steer, judged best of the 1,100 beef cattle, and will sell it at the show's close. James Smoker of Wanatah, Ind., took top honors with the steer.

3 'Gentleman' Thugs Arrested In Gem Theft

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 — The three "soothing" bandits who robbed Mrs. Sonja Loew of $50,000 in jewelry in her New York hotel appartment were arrested today by detectives.

Police said most of the jewelry has been recovered. Some of it had been broken up apparently to make it ready for sale to a "fence."

According to police the trio was among 10 men arrested in a raid on the upper westside.

Mrs. Loew, 31, of Milton, Mass., a Boston suburb, is divorced from Elias M. Loew, a New England theatre magnate.

Police were seeking two male dancers, whom Mrs. Loew says she used to know in Vienna and whom she invited to her room for a drink three days ago. She said she ordered the pair out when one made advances.

How the trio happened to get inside Mrs. Loew's suite, then escape without being noticed in the hotel, baffled police.

They said the "gentleman" leader even telephoned back to the hotel and asked the desk to take care of the trussed-up Mrs. Loew.

Massachusetts was the first state in the Union to enact laws governing conditions in factories.

PURPOSE OF VETO

IT IS altogether likely that the situation envisioned by Russian leaders when they insisted on the veto power in the United Nations Security Council now has arisen. The Soviet Union is formally accused of threatening the peace of the world; and the Soviet Union, through its veto, has the power to prevent the Security Council from doing anything about it.

Probably the most that the Western Powers can hope to accomplish by bringing the Berlin dispute before the United Nations would be a resolution in the General Assembly branding Russia as a breaker of promises and a provoker of war. If such a resolution should be voted by the Assembly, it might have some effect, even though the Security Council should be held powerless by the Russian veto.

A resolution fixing blame on Russia for the threat to peace would declare world sentiment to be against her in the dispute with the Western Powers. Russia has not in the past shown deep regard for world sentiment, and would perhaps continue on an unaltered course. But she would do so only at the risk of losing the friendship of all nations except those whose internal policies are guided from Moscow. It is conceivable that the men in the Kremlin might think that sacrifice too great.

A possibility which should not be completely overlooked is that there might be proposed in the Security Council an order to the Western Nations to withdraw from Berlin, which might be supported by nations seeing in it a possible way to end the Berlin crisis, with its trying pressure on many other countries. Would we, in such an event, use our own veto to prevent adoption of that order?

"NOT ME"

"TWASN'T me; 'twas him." In the days of New York's Tweed ring a famous cartoon by Thomas Nast represented the Tammany leaders in a circle, each trying to absolve himself of graft charges by pointing the finger of blame at his neighbor. The Nazis are like that. Franz Halder, former German chief of staff, has replied to charges of responsibility for the war, presented by a German court, by blaming Hitler. Only Hitler was in supreme command, says Halder, and no one else knew his purposes.

A point of this defense, already made by other Nazis, is that Hitler is dead, and therefore makes a perfect scapegoat. The judges, like most laymen, may find it hard to believe that the chief of the German army had nothing to do with the starting of the war.

In the war the problem was to get to Berlin. Now it is to stay there.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Miss Edna Lonigan raises an interesting point in an article in "Human Events":

"'It can't be true,' say the pseudo-liberals. 'The grand jury would have indicted. The FBI would have proved them guilty.' But guilty of what? Most American followers of the NKVD have committed no crime. They have violated no law. If every statement in the testimony of Miss Bentley and Mr. Chambers is proved true, the grand jury will still find it difficult to indict. We have no law compelling government employees to propose only ideas that are for the good of their country."

That is why such committees as the Thomas, the Ferguson and the Revercomb committees are having such a difficult time of it. Let us take the Hiss case as an example. It has not been established that Alger Hiss is a Communist, a Communist agent, a Russian spy, an NKVD agent or even a fellow-traveler. All that has been proved about Hiss is that he once kept some very bad company and tried to cover up and failed. If there is more evidence on Hiss, the President refuses to permit Congress to have it and the American people to know it. And under the law, the President has a legal right to keep those files secret as long as he chooses. The American people have no legal rights in the matter.

We may assume that all those who decline to answer questions on the ground that to answer would incriminate them are guilty of some offense. Otherwise, nothing that they said could incriminate them. They have been advised by their lawyers that they have a legal and constitutional right to silence.

We know from the investigations of the Dies committee, the Rapp-Coudert committee in New York, the California legislative investigation, the Canadian report and other sources that Soviet Russia has been operating in this country, as she has in every country, through natives directed by Europeans. The more native the native, the better he is for the kind of work they need to have done. Earl Browder's ancestry goes back to Colonial times—he is obviously a better man than Jay Lovestone or Ben Gitlow, who are of recent immigrant stock.

This pattern is universal. One meets it in Korea, in Germany, in China, in Czechoslovakia. It is the American pattern. But it is not an illegal pattern. Certainly, Louise Bernstein-Bransten-Berman has a right to serve mankind as she chooses. Cleverly she places herself on the lofty pedestal of noble service. Tommy Manville spends his money on gals and mink coats; she spends hers on the underdog. So does John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Is anything wrong? What about Mr. Adams? She legally refuses to answer about him—to answer would incriminate her. And that is her legal right. Was Mr. Adams an underdog or a spy?

While he was trapesing around this country, the Hearst press exposed him as a spy and tried to trace him down, but he was permitted to leave the United States with valuable documents.

What is the FBI record on Adams? That secret has been guarded by President Truman and is only now being forced out.

Dangerous Condition Arises If Blood Clot Forms in Vein

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WERE it not for the clotting power of the blood, even minor injuries would allow the blood to leak from the body as water does through a sieve and we would have no way of stopping it.

Yet, important as this quality of the blood is under ordinary circumstances, it can sometimes cause difficulties, particularly when a clot forms in one of the veins. This condition is called venous thrombosis, or thrombophlebitis if, in addition to the clot, there is inflammation of the vein.

Two New Drugs

Either one of these conditions is always potentially dangerous and we are fortunate indeed in possessing two new drugs known as anticoagulants, with which to combat them. One of these drugs is dicumarol, the other is heparin; both slow down the clotting time of the blood.

The deep veins of the legs are particularly subject to the clotting which brings about thrombosis or thrombophlebitis. In some cases, the condition is acute or sudden, accompanied by fever, an increase in the number of white cells in the blood, and swelling and tenderness of the leg.

In other instances, it continues over a long period of time with less-marked symptoms. There is perhaps a slight increase in the pulse rate and some soreness and swelling.

Many methods of treatment for these conditions have been employed. For example, some time ago, the only treatment used was complete rest for five or six weeks. Such treatment was often followed by permanent swelling of the tissues and persistent pain. X-ray treatment has also been used; and tight bandages and early walking have been of help in some cases.

Some physicians have advised the tying off of the veins to prevent bits of material which might break off from the clot from getting into the general circulation. Today nearly all of these methods have been abandoned in favor of the anticoagulants.

Dicumarol seems to be used to the greatest extent. In carrying out the treatment, the substance is given by mouth on the first and second days. Thereafter the treatment is controlled by making tests of the clotting time of the blood each day in order to determine whether or not additional treatment is required, for it is important not to allow the clotting time to become too prolonged. Following the second day, the dose of the preparation is reduced to about one-third of that which was given on the first two days of treatment.

If abnormal bleeding should occur as a complication of the treatment, the patient may be given an injection of whole blood into a vein, as well as an injection of Vitamin K. The injection of Vitamin K may be repeated after twelve hours.

The patient is kept in bed until the symptoms have disappeared and the blood clotting time has returned to normal.

Sometimes a bit of the material broken off from the blood clot gets into a lung. This is known as a pulmonary embolus. Such a condition may threaten life and, when it occurs, heparin should be given immediately by injection into a vein since it produces a more rapid change in the clotting time of the blood than dicumarol. In certain types of operation, there may be danger of blood clot formation. In such cases, it may be advisable to give dicumarol as a preventive measure.

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful model, Gail "Rusty" Rogers, is in love with Sam Meredith, clever devil-may-care reporter, but decides not to marry him. With Sam there would be no settled home life, no security. Instead she accepts the courtship of wealthy Brad Spencer, whom she does not love but greatly respects. She is entirely honest with Brad as to her feeling for Sam, her fear of poverty, her lonely bitter childhood. Brad falls completely in love with her but realizes he has a powerful rival in Sam, whom Rusty cannot forget. Brad's austere Victorian grandmother is greatly worried over his new found romance. She invites Gail to tea to look her over. Late next night Brad and Gail drop into the Stork Club, where they meet Sam, who is in a desperate, jealous mood. Gail tells Brad she is through with Sam.

CHAPTER TEN

"SAM ASKED me to marry him," said Gail, "or, rather, he assumed that I would, and with gratitude. He was big about it," she remarked acidly, "because it's entirely against his principles."

"And?" asked Brad. He held his breath a moment. He thought, She's been badly hurt. He experienced an enormous tenderness and pity, sharper and more compelling than desire.

"I refused."

The cab stopped at the brownstone house but Brad made no move to get out. The driver asked, "This the place, Bud?" and he said, "Yes. Wait a moment, will you?"

He leaned forward and the street light illuminated his grave face, the bright brown eyes. "May I call you?" he asked.

"Of course."

"My grandmother will, also." He added, "She's meticulous about some things, Gail; but not about others. She's extremely forthright. It's probably a form of arrogance. She speaks her mind when it suits her to do so . . . on the theory that attack is better than defense."

"You're warning me?"

"Perhaps."

"All right," said Gail. "Does she know anything about me?"

"No."

"Do you?"

"All that seems necessary."

She was silent and he added, "Could we be engaged to be engaged?"

He put his arm around her, gently, demanding nothing. He asked, "Well? You've nothing to lose, you know."

And everything to gain, she thought. Her head ached with a sudden violence. She said, with an effort at lightness, "That's unwise of you, Brad. I might take you up on it."

"I hope so. In the interest of research, do you dislike my arm around you?"

"No," she said truhtfully. It was even pleasant, the arm to lean upon, a shelter, the promise of safety.

"Or—this?"

He bent and kissed her, not too casually, and that was pleasant too . . . not exciting, not painfully pleasurable, but pleasant.

She said, "No, Brad, I don't dislike it."

"Good," he said. "Well, think it over. I'll call you within the next few hours . . . I may have to go off to Washington again but not before the end of the week."

She could see him smile, seemingly undisturbed. She thought, He's a strange person, and was troubled because she could not read him clearly or fit him into any familiar pattern.

He got out of the cab and spoke to the driver. "Wait for me, will you?" he asked, helped Gail out, and took her to the door. He did not offer to shake hands. He simply looked at her, still smiling, and said, "Thanks for a very hopeful evening."

"Brad—"

"What?"

"Never mind, just thanks, for everything."

"Sometime you will finish what you wanted to say and then thought better of. This isn't, perhaps, the right moment or the right place. Let me have your key."

He took it from her, and opened the door. "Good night," he said and went back to his cab and she heard, as she climbed the stairs, the door slam and the car start.

In the cab, he thought, Who has hurt her so much? Sam, of course, but it isn't altogether Sam, there are other wounds.

He was a stubborn man and a patient one. His work called for stubbornness, patience, endurance. It also called for hope.

He thought, We have plenty of time, and was instantly aware that he was not certain.

Gail fumbled for her other key, at the door of the flat. A light burned in the little living room, and it was silent there. The girls were in and asleep. On the telephone table she saw the propped note, with Evie's scrawl across its face. Evie had written: "Gail, that madman, Sam, called twice—he woke me up."

When? she thought, standing there in her fur jacket and shivering a little from nerves and fatigue, before or after we saw him?

The telephone rang again with a crazy shrillness, telephones sound so much louder and insistent after midnight, and she lifted it from the cradle and spoke softly into it. "Yes?" she asked.

Evie's head poked itself around the door of her bedroom. She said crossly, "For Pete's sake—oh, you're in, Gail . . ."

"Gail?"

"Yes."

"This is Sam. Remember me, poor but dishonest?"

She said, "Sam, you waked Evie up, twice, you're impossible . . ."

"Tell her she requires no beauty sleep." His voice was somewhat loud, and his words blurred. "I gave you time to get home . . . if you did go home."

"I am home . . . obviously."

"Put Spencer on, baby."

She said evenly, "He isn't here."

"Strictly from etiquette," he said approvingly.

"Sam, it's very late."

"Oh sure . . . Should she ask him in?" he said. "No, of course not . . . not if he's a nice young man with twenty million dollars and innocent of evil."

She said, "This is a stupid conversation."

"We'll decide about that tomorrow," he answered, and hung up abruptly. Her eardrums hurt, first with the clatter, then with the silence. She put the phone back on the cradle gently and turned. Evie was still standing there, a robe tossed over her shoulders, her small feet bare; disheveled, and pink from sleep, she looked enchanting.

She came into the room and sat down in a big chair and curled her legs under her. "What cooks?" she asked. "I couldn't sleep anyway . . . thanks to your young man."

Gail sat down and took off her jacket. She said, "Brad took me to the Stork. Sam came in, with a couple of girls and another man. I never saw any of them before. He stopped at the table . . . He was still there when we left. I suppose he thought we'd had time to get back, when he phoned."

"Where were you?" asked Evie. "Not that it's any of my business."

"Outside, talking, in the cab." She leaned her head back against the chair. "I'm awfully tired," she said.

"Look," said Evie, "I don't want to stick my neck out and I suppose the reason the three of us get on so well is because we don't . . . but why don't you give Sam the brush-off? There's no percentage in things as they are."

"I did, last night."

"Oh?" Evie lifted an eyebrow. "And he won't stay brushed?"

"I don't know."

"You'll find out. I liked Brad Spencer," said Evie thoughtfully. "No glamor boy, except for the gilding, but a solid citizen. Do you like him, Gail?"

"Yes."

"Is it possible," Evie asked, "to divorce him from the money? I mean, subtract the money from him and look at what's left?"

Gail said, after a moment, "No."

"That's too bad," Evie told her, "because maybe he rates it. But me, I couldn't either. I suppose he's used to it by now."

Gail got to her feet. She said, "I'm half dead . . . night, Evie."

But Evie went to the bedroom door with her and stood there, watching Gail take off her frock. "In your shoes," she said, "I'd latch on to Spencer . . . no matter how. But then I'm ambitious, I'm not plagued by scruples. Which doesn't, and won't, make me a tramp because I'm too smart for that. But you . . ." She shook her head. "Sam Meredith's bad for you," she said somberly, "in marriage or out of it. He was bad for Betty, but he'd be worse with you. Betty's all body and no brains. Watch your step," she warned, and went back to her own room.

When you're so tired you don't sleep. Gail lay awake and went back over the evening, step by step. It made very little sense. She got nothing out of it in retrospect except that Sam wasn't giving up, probably because she had not given in, and that, although he had not said so in so many words, Bradford Spencer was in love with her.

She liked him; she liked him very much. Liking was more durable than love, and if you made a promise you kept it.

But she was afraid to sleep, because if she slept she would dream.

IT HAPPENED TODAY

An Italian torpedo boat was blown up by an Austrian mine in the Adriatic sea on this date in 1914. On Sept. 30, 1932, police stop mass hunger march on Whitehall, London.

JOBS UPON A TIME

As a baseball man, William Harrison Southworth was a good salesman. So much so that after six months with a business house in Columbus, Billy became sales manager of his department. That was in 1934. Baseball was in his blood, however, and the former player and manager returned to the diamond in 1935 as manager of the Asheville club of the Piedmont league. Except for that interlude in business, Billy has been in baseball since he was 18 years old when he signed to play for Portsmouth of the Ohio State league. He was an outfielder during most of his career. As a manager he has piloted Rochester, Columbus, Asheville and Memphis in the minor leagues and the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves in the National league. At present he is manager of the Braves.

Orchestra Leader Horace Heidt does pretty well in anything he touches. Before World War II he had a radio program, Pot O' Gold, but left radio to make a million in real estate. Today he is back on the air waves with another top program. His scouts conduct up to 3,000 auditions weekly while the Heidt show travels from city to city. Some 90 get a spot on a local Heidt stage; the four best appear on his Sunday night radio show. The air winner travels with Heidt until defeated.

YOUR FUTURE

Pleasant surprises are indicated for the prosperous, with beneficial changes and travel. The day betokens interest in intellectual pursuits. Also the traits of discrimination, diplomacy, industriousness, ambition, originality. You can be very successful, enjoy hearty good health, look after your own interests ably.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—It is an old game, this wondering what stature in life some poor little nonentity might have reached if he'd been given a better break in family or environment. You see a streetcleaner who is the image of Harry Truman and you speculate on the fate that brought one of these identical twins into the world in Independence and crossed his path with that of Boss Pendergast . . . and dropped the other one off in a Bronx tenement and blocked off all the exits from the slum life.

You are buying gloves for A Friend in one of the Fifth avenue department stores and you look up at the little salesgirl in her black dress and discover she could double for Joan Bennett. But Joan Bennett has eight swimming pools or thereabouts, and the salesgirl lives in two rooms in Brooklyn with her aging mother and goes to a Saturday night movie for kicks. Why?

This evening, leaning against the parapet on the roof of your apartment building, with the late-summer haze hanging still and dreamily over the other rooftops of Manhattan to the south, you begin wondering again.

Around the corner, far down the block, three street musicians have come into sight and as they begin wandering up the middle of the road you listen to some of the most beautiful trumpet you ever have heard—and you say to yourself . . . is THAT musician playing for pennies thrown out of windows or handed to him by kids?

You are 13 floors up and the best you can see of the three are their heads and shoulders and their feet, which seem huge and shambling. There is the trumpet and, for rhythm, a guitar and an banjo. The guitar and banjo are pretty deadly and you understand why they may be playing for pennies.

They obviously are fugitives from a country club dance, tinny and loud but far, far removed from the realm of music. They content themselves with playing rhythm most of the time and let the trumpet man take chorus after chorus. And he takes them.

He holds the shiny horn straight in front of him and he walks up the middle of the street in the still September evening, playing sad and gaudy little Tin Pan Alley numbers that were merely arithmetical exercises to begin with and making music out of them.

THERE ARE A HUNDRED DIFFERENT WAYS of playing a trumpet and the way this man plays his is, roughly, the way a good, better-known trumpeter named Bobby Hackett plays his. It makes you wonder, again.

Hackett is a small, amiable man with a ridiculous mustache who makes a handsome living playing in studio bands for the broadcasting companies and then, when that child's play is done for the night, hurrying down to Nick's jazz emporium on lower Seventh avenue to wrap up the old ones like I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate, Jada and Ballin' the Jack.

Bobby Hackett wears clean, expensive shirts, takes taxicabs when the mood is upon him and drinks the best Scotch. Now, in the city twilight, you lean over a rooftop and listen to a young guy in shirt-sleeves blowing some horn that is more like Hackett than the kid himself.

Only this one is playing for peanuts. He is wandering up the block, bringing people to the window from their dinner tables, with a couple of broken-down rhythm men for background, and hoping to pick up beer-and-sandwich money. What's the deal? Why is this so?

You can tell that the songs he plays are near and dear to him, the peculiar way certain tunes have of getting under your skin. There he goes starting off on something called Close As Pages in a Book, a banal little aria from (you believe) the old Billy Rose show, Seven Lively Arts.

As he plays it in that incredible clear, warm style it takes on dimensions that it never had when dripped over the radio by Guy Lombardo or Sammy Kaye. You can hear the windows going up.

That woman over there, carefully placing a handkerchief on the sill before resting her elbows on it, wouldn't know a flatted eighth from a dotted fifth, but she stays there by the window for a long time and listens as the trumpeter goes up the block. Maybe the night has something to do with it, the soft city night and the auto horns and the kids' yelling that gives the horn such wonderful accompaniment.

It doesn't last long. Ten minutes or so and he has disappeared up the street and the horn grows fainter, until finally you can hear it no more. For a few moments the echo seems to linger, as if the music was still hanging in the evening air. Then even that fades and the only sounds are the noises of the city, making their own music, incredible and fascinating, making your heart sweetly sad in the dying summer.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The old League of Nations never had such a tense week as that old American League.

I hear one spy, who got a code cable asking "Is America Frightened Yet?", wired back "Scared silly; thousands huddling together in ball parks every day."

But if Stalin is smart he will do nothing about the future of Berlin until the future of Boston has been decided.

Now every visitor to Boston wants to see not only where Revere hung his lanterns on the British but where McCarthy hung it on the Yanks.

As soon as this is out of the way we can get back to our normal worries over peace, prices and politics. We have proved that we can do it.

Our interest in the ball game should not be interpreted as an indication that we are not on the ball.

The "Whiskey Rebellion" was an uprising in western Pennsylvania in 1794 against the federal government, occasioned by the attempted enforcement of the excise law on domestic spirits.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Miss Edna Lonigan raises an interesting point in an article in "Human Events":

" 'It can't be true,' say the pseudo-liberals. 'The grand jury would have indicted. The FBI would have proved them guilty.' But guilty of what? Most American followers of the NKVD have committed no crime. They have violated no law. If every statement in the testimony of Miss Bentley and Mr. Chambers is proved true, the grand jury will still find it difficult to indict. We have no law compelling government employees to propose only ideas that are for the good of their country."

That is why such committees as the Thomas, the Ferguson and the Revercomb committees are having such a difficult time of it. Let us take the Hiss case as an example. It has not been established that Alger Hiss is a Communist, a Communist agent, a Russian spy, an NKVD agent or even a fellow-traveler. All that has been proved about Hiss is that he once kept some very bad company and tried to cover up and failed. If there is more evidence on Hiss, the President refuses to permit Congress to have it and the American people to know it. And under the law, the President has a legal right to keep those files secret as long as he chooses. The American people have no legal rights in the matter.

We may assume that all those who decline to answer questions on the ground that to answer would incriminate them are guilty of some offense. Otherwise, nothing that they said could incriminate them. They have been advised by their lawyers that they have a legal and constitutional right to silence.

We know from the investigations of the Dies committee, the Rapp-Coudert committee in New York, the California legislative investigation, the Canadian report and other sources that Soviet Russia has been operating in this country, as she has in every country, through natives directed by Europeans. The more native the native, the better he is for the kind of work they need to have done. Earl Browder's ancestry goes back to Colonial times—he is obviously a better man than Jay Lovestone or Ben Gitlow, who are of recent immigrant stock.

This pattern is universal. One meets it in Korea, in Germany, in China, in Czechoslovakia. It is the American pattern. But it is not an illegal pattern. Certainly, Louise Bernstein-Bransten-Berman has a right to serve mankind as she chooses. Cleverly she places herself on the lofty pedestal of noble service. Tommy Manville spends his money on gals and mink coats; she spends hers on the underdog. So does John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Is anything wrong? What about Mr. Adams? She legally refuses to answer about him—to answer would incriminate her. And that is her legal right. Was Mr. Adams an underdog or a spy?

While he was trapesing around this country, the Hearst press exposed him as a spy and tried to trace him down, but he was permitted to leave the United States with valuable documents.

What is the FBI record on Adams? That secret has been guarded by President Truman and is only now being forced out.

Dangerous Condition Arises If Blood Clot Forms in Vein

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WERE it not for the clotting power of the blood, even minor injuries would allow the blood to leak from the body as water does through a sieve and we would have no way of stopping it.

Yet, important as this quality of the blood is under ordinary circumstances, it can sometimes cause difficulties, particularly when a clot forms in one of the veins. This condition is called venous thrombosis, or thrombophlebitis if, in addition to the clot, there is inflammation of the vein.

Two New Drugs

Either one of these conditions is always potentially dangerous and we are fortunate indeed in possessing two new drugs known as anticoagulants, with which to combat them. One of these drugs is dicumarol, the other is heparin; both slow down the clotting time of the blood.

The deep veins of the legs are particularly subject to the clotting which brings about thrombosis or thrombophlebitis. In some cases, the condition is acute or sudden, accompanied by fever, an increase in the number of white cells in the blood, and swelling and tenderness of the leg.

In other instances, it continues over a long period of time with less-marked symptoms. There is perhaps a slight increase in the pulse rate and some soreness and swelling.

Many methods of treatment for these conditions have been employed. For example, some time ago, the only treatment used was complete rest for five or six weeks. Such treatment was often followed by permanent swelling of the tissues and persistent pain. X-ray treatment has also been used; and tight bandages and early walking have been of help in some cases.

Some physicians have advised the tying off of the veins to prevent bits of material which might break off from the clot from getting into the general circulation. Today nearly all of these methods have been abandoned in favor of the anticoagulants.

Dicumarol seems to be used to the greatest extent. In carrying out the treatment, the substance is given by mouth on the first and second days. Thereafter the treatment is controlled by making tests of the clotting time of the blood each day in order to determine whether or not additional treatment is required, for it is important not to allow the clotting time to become too prolonged. Following the second day, the dose of the preparation is reduced to about one-third of that which was given on the first two days of treatment.

If abnormal bleeding should occur as a complication of the treatment, the patient may be given an injection of whole blood into a vein, as well as an injection of Vitamin K. The injection of Vitamin K may be repeated after twelve hours.

The patient is kept in bed until the symptoms have disappeared and the blood clotting time has returned to normal.

Sometimes a bit of the material broken off from the blood clot gets into a lung. This is known as a pulmonary embolus. Such a condition may threaten life and, when it occurs, heparin should be given immediately by injection into a vein since it produces a more rapid change in the clotting time of the blood than dicumarol. In certain types of operation, there may be danger of blood clot formation. In such cases, it may be advisable to give dicumarol as a preventive measure.

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful model, Gail "Rusty" Rogers, is in love with Sam Meredith, clever devil-may-care reporter, but decides not to marry him. With Sam there would be no settled home life, no security. Instead she accepts the courtship of wealthy Brad Spencer, whom she does not love but greatly respects. She is entirely honest with Brad as to her feeling for Sam, her fear of poverty, her lonely bitter childhood. Brad falls completely in love with her but realizes he has a powerful rival in Sam, whom Rusty cannot forget. Brad's austere Victorian grandmother is greatly worried over his new found romance. She invites Gail to tea to look her over. Late next night Brad and Gail drop into the Stork Club, where they meet Sam, who is in a desperate, jealous mood. Gail tells Brad she is through with Sam.

CHAPTER TEN

"SAM ASKED me to marry him," said Gail, "or, rather, he assumed that I would, and with gratitude. He was big about it," she remarked acidly, "because it's entirely against his principles."

"And?" asked Brad. He held his breath a moment. He thought, She's been badly hurt. He experienced an enormous tenderness and pity, sharper and more compelling than desire.

"I refused."

The cab stopped at the brownstone house but Brad made no move to get out. The driver asked, "This the place, Bud?" and he said, "Yes. Wait a moment, will you?"

He leaned forward and the street light illuminated his grave face, the bright brown eyes. "May I call you?" he asked.

"Of course."

"My grandmother will, also." He added, "She's meticulous about some things, Gail; but not about others. She's extremely forthright. It's probably a form of arrogance. She speaks her mind when it suits her to do so . . . on the theory that attack is better than defense."

"You're warning me?"

"Perhaps."

"All right," said Gail. "Does she know anything about me?"

"No."

"Do you?"

"All that seems necessary."

She was silent and he added, "Could we be engaged to be engaged?"

He put his arm around her, gently, demanding nothing. He asked, "Well? You've nothing to lose, you know."

And everything to gain, she thought. Her head ached with a sudden violence. She said, with an effort at lightness, "That's unwise of you, Brad. I might take you up on it."

"I hope so. In the interest of research, do you dislike my arm around you?"

"No," she said truthfully. It was even pleasant, the arm to lean upon, a shelter, the promise of safety.

"Or—this?"

He bent and kissed her, not too casually, and that was pleasant too . . . not exciting, not painfully pleasurable, but pleasant.

She said, "No, Brad, I don't dislike it."

"Good," he said. "Well, think it over. I'll call you within the next few hours . . . I may have to go off to Washington again but not before the end of the week."

She could see him smile, seemingly undisturbed. She thought, He's a strange person, and was troubled because she could not read him clearly or fit him into any familiar pattern.

He got out of the cab and spoke to the driver. "Wait for me, will you?" he asked, helped Gail out, and took her to the door. He did not offer to shake hands. He simply looked at her, still smiling, and said, "Thanks for a very hopeful evening."

"Brad—"

"What?"

"Never mind, just thanks, for everything."

"Sometime you will finish what you wanted to say and then thought better of. This isn't, perhaps, the right moment or the right place. Let me have your key."

He took it from her, and opened the door. "Good night," he said and went back to his cab and she heard, as she climbed the stairs, the door slam and the car start.

In the cab, he thought, Who has hurt her so much? Sam, of course, but it isn't altogether Sam, there are other wounds.

He was a stubborn man and a patient one. His work called for stubbornness, patience, endurance. It also called for hope.

He thought, We have plenty of time, and was instantly aware that he was not certain.

Gail fumbled for her other key, at the door of the flat. A light burned in the little living room, and it was silent there. The girls were in and asleep. On the telephone table she saw the propped note, with Evie's scrawl across its face. Evie had written: "Gail, that madman, Sam, called twice—he woke me up."

When? she thought, standing there in her fur jacket and shivering a little from nerves and fatigue, before or after we saw him?

The telephone rang again with a crazy shrillness, telephones sound so much louder and insistent after midnight, and she lifted it from the cradle and spoke softly into it. "Yes?" she asked.

Evie's head poked itself around the door of her bedroom. She said crossly, "For Pete's sake—oh, you're in, Gail . . ."

"Gail?"

"Yes."

"This is Sam. Remember me, poor but dishonest?"

She said, "Sam, you waked Evie up, twice, you're impossible . . ."

"Tell her she requires no beauty sleep." His voice was somewhat loud, and his words blurred. "I gave you time to get home . . . if you did go home."

"I am home . . . obviously."

"Put Spencer on, baby."

She said evenly, "He isn't here."

"Strictly from etiquette," he said approvingly.

"Sam, it's very late."

"Oh sure . . . Should she ask him in?" he said. "No, of course not . . . not if he's a nice young man with twenty million dollars and innocent of evil."

She said, "This is a stupid conversation."

"We'll decide about that tomorrow," he answered, and hung up abruptly. Her eardrums hurt, first with the clatter, then with the silence. She put the phone back on the cradle gently and turned. Evie was still standing there, a robe tossed over her shoulders, her small feet bare; disheveled, and pink from sleep, she looked enchanting.

She came into the room and sat down in a big chair and curled her legs under her. "What cooks?" she asked. "I couldn't sleep anyway . . . thanks to your young man."

Gail sat down and took off her jacket. She said, "Brad took me to the Stork. Sam came in, with a couple of girls and another man. I never saw any of them before. He stopped at the table . . . He was still there when we left. I suppose he thought we'd had time to get back, when he phoned."

"Where were you?" asked Evie. "Not that it's any of my business."

"Outside, talking, in the cab." She leaned her head back against the chair. "I'm awfully tired," she said.

"Look," said Evie, "I don't want to stick my neck out and I suppose the reason the three of us get on so well is because we don't . . . but why don't you give Sam the brush-off? There's no percentage in things as they are."

"I did, last night."

"Oh?" Evie lifted an eyebrow. "And he won't stay brushed?"

"I don't know."

"You'll find out. I liked Brad Spencer," said Evie thoughtfully. "No glamor boy, except for the gilding, but a solid citizen. Do you like him, Gail?"

"Yes."

"Is it possible," Evie asked, "to divorce him from the money? I mean, subtract the money from him and look at what's left?"

Gail said, after a moment, "No."

"That's too bad," Evie told her, "because maybe he rates it. But me, I couldn't either. I suppose he's used to it by now."

Gail got to her feet. She said, "I'm half dead . . . night, Evie."

But Evie went to the bedroom door with her and stood there, watching Gail take off her frock. "In your shoes," she said, "I'd latch on to Spencer . . . no matter how. But then I'm ambitious, I'm not plagued by scruples. Which doesn't, and won't, make me a tramp because I'm too smart for that. But you . . ." She shook her head. "Sam Meredith's bad for you," she said somberly, "in marriage or out of it. He was bad for Betty, but he'd be worse with you. Betty's all body and no brains. Watch your step," she warned, and went back to her own room.

When you're so tired you don't sleep. Gail lay awake and went back over the evening, step by step. It made very little sense. She got nothing out of it in retrospect except that Sam wasn't giving up, probably because she had not given in, and that, although he had not said so in so many words, Bradford Spencer was in love with her.

She liked him; she liked him very much. Liking was more durable than love, and if you made a promise you kept it.

But she was afraid to sleep, because if she slept she would dream.

JOBS UPON A TIME

As a baseball man, William Harrison Southworth was a good salesman. So much so that after six months with a business house in Columbus, Billy became sales manager of his department. That was in 1934. Baseball was in his blood, however, and the former player and manager returned to the diamond in 1935 as manager of the Asheville club of the Piedmont league. Except for that interlude in business, Billy has been in baseball since he was 18 years old when he signed to play for Portsmouth of the Ohio State league. He was an outfielder during most of his career. As a manager he has piloted Rochester, Columbus, Asheville and Memphis in the minor leagues and the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Braves in the National league. At present he is manager of the Braves.

Orchestra Leader Horace Heidt does pretty well in anything he touches. Before World War II he had a radio program, Pot O' Gold, but left radio to make a million in real estate. Today he is back on the air waves with another top program. His scouts conduct up to 3,000 auditions weekly while the Heidt show travels from city to city. Some 90 get a spot on a local Heidt stage; the four best appear on his Sunday night radio show. The air winner travels with Heidt until defeated.

YOUR FUTURE

Pleasant surprises are indicated for the prosperous, with beneficial changes and travel. The day betokens interest in intellectual pursuits. Also the traits of discrimination, diplomacy, industriousness, ambition, originality. You can be very successful, enjoy hearty good health, look after your own interests ably.

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—It is an old game, this wonder what stature in life some poor little nonentity might have reached if he'd been given a better break in family or environment. You see a streetcleaner who is the image of Harry Truman and you speculate on the fate that brought one of these identical twins into the world in Independence and crossed his path with that of Boss Pendergast . . . and dropped the other one off in a Bronx tenement and blocked off all the exits from the slum life.

You are buying gloves for A Friend in one of the Fifth avenue department stores and you look up at the little salesgirl in her black dress and discover she could double for Joan Bennett. But Joan Bennett has eight swimming pools or thereabouts, and the salesgirl lives in two rooms in Brooklyn with her aging mother and goes to a Saturday night movie for kicks. Why?

This evening, leaning against the parapet on the roof of your apartment building, with the late-summer haze hanging still and dreamily over the other rooftops of Manhattan to the south, you begin wondering again.

Around the corner, far down the block, three street musicians have come into sight and as they begin wandering up the middle of the road you listen to some of the most beautiful trumpet you ever have heard—and you say to yourself . . . is THAT musician playing for pennies thrown out of windows or handed to him by kids?

You are 13 floors up and the best you can see of the three are their heads and shoulders and their feet, which seem huge and shambling. There is the trumpet and, for rhythm, a guitar and an banjo. The guitar and banjo are pretty deadly and you understand why they may be playing for pennies.

They obviously are fugitives from a country club dance, tinny and loud but far, far removed from the realm of music. They content themselves with playing rhythm most of the time and let the trumpet man take chorus after chorus. And he takes them.

He holds the shiny horn straight in front of him and he walks up the middle of the street in the still September evening, playing sad and gaudy little Tin Pan Alley numbers that were merely arithmetical exercises to begin with and making music out of them.

THERE ARE A HUNDRED DIFFERENT WAYS of playing a trumpet and the way this man plays his is, roughly, the way a good, better-known trumpeter named Bobby Hackett plays his. It makes you wonder, again.

Hackett is a small, amiable man with a ridiculous mustache who makes a handsome living playing in studio bands for the broadcasting companies and then, when that child's play is done for the night, hurrying down to Nick's jazz emporium on lower Seventh avenue to wrap up the old ones like I Wish I Could Shimmy Like My Sister Kate, Jada and Ballin' the Jack.

Bobby Hackett wears clean, expensive shirts, takes taxicabs when the mood is upon him and drinks the best Scotch. Now, in the city twilight, you lean over a rooftop and listen to a young guy in shirt-sleeves blowing some horn that is more like Hackett than the kid himself.

Only this one is playing for peanuts. He is wandering up the block, bringing people to the window from their dinner tables, with a couple of broken-down rhythm men for background, and hoping to pick up beer-and-sandwich money. What's the deal? Why is this so?

You can tell that the songs he plays are near and dear to him, the peculiar way certain tunes have of getting under your skin. There he goes starting off on something called Close As Pages in a Book, a banal little aria from (you believe) the old Billy Rose show, Seven Lively Arts.

As he plays it in that incredible clear, warm style it takes on dimensions that it never had when dripped over the radio by Guy Lombardo or Sammy Kaye. You can hear the windows going up.

That woman over there, carefully placing a handkerchief on the sill before resting her elbows on it, wouldn't know a flatted eighth from a dotted fifth, but she stays there by the window for a long time and listens as the trumpeter goes up the block. Maybe the night has something to do with it, the soft city night and the auto horns and the kids' yelling that gives the horn such wonderful accompaniment.

It doesn't last long. Ten minutes or so and he has disappeared up the street and the horn grows fainter, until finally you can hear it no more. For a few moments the echo seems to linger, as if the music was still hanging in the evening air. Then even that fades and the only sounds are the noises of the city, making their own music, incredible and fascinating, making your heart sweetly sad in the dying summer.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The old League of Nations never had such a tense week as that old American League.

I hear one spy, who got a code cable asking "Is America Frightened Yet?", wired back "Scared silly; thousands huddling together in ball parks every day."

But if Stalin is smart he will do nothing about the future of Berlin until the future of Boston has been decided.

Now every visitor to Boston wants to see not only where Revere hung his lanterns on the British but where McCarthy hung it on the Yanks.

As soon as this is out of the way we can get back to our normal worries over peace, prices and politics. We have proved that we can do it.

Our interest in the ball game should not be interpreted as an indication that we are not on the ball.

The "Whiskey Rebellion" was an uprising in western Pennsylvania in 1794 against the federal government, occasioned by the attempted enforcement of the excise law on domestic spirits.

Household Hints

The best time to paint a porch floor is in warm weather after a number of dry days. The cracks between the floor boards, widest then, should be filled with a crack filler. Do not paint the floor until the filler dries.

Treat groups of windows as one, to give as much light and sun as possible to a room, as well as to get the best decorative effect Draperies made to be drawn at night add much to the effect and little to the cost. The place and type of decorating will determine whether they are to be the only curtains at the window, or are to be hung over organdie, net, sheer rayon glass curtains, or over Venetian blinds.

Good cleansing aides are bath sponges which come put up in the form of tiny discs and which fluff up when moistened with lotion, cologne or plain water. Excellent on a trip when dust and grime must be kept at bay.

Household Hints

The best time to paint a porch floor is in warm weather after a number of dry days. The cracks between the floor boards, widest then, should be filled with a crack filler. Do not paint the floor until the filler dries.

Treat groups of windows as one, to give as much light and sun as possible to a room, as well as to get the best decorative effect Draperies made to be drawn at night add much to the effect and little to the cost. The place and type of decorating will determine whether they are to be the only curtains at the window, or are to be hung over organdie, net, sheer rayon glass curtains, or over Venetian blinds.

Good cleansing aides are bath sponges which come put up in the form of tiny discs and which fluff up when moistened with lotion, cologne or plain water. Excellent on a trip when dust and grime must be kept at bay.

PEGTOP SKIRT . . . Gunmetal satin cocktail dress with autumn's pegtop skirt, by a New York designer. Collar is embroidered with rhinestones and centered with a bow of the fabric.

Compressor Opened By Gas Firm

Project Is Part Of Huge Program

MANSFIELD, Sept. 30 — A new compressor station and a huge underground storage project were dedicated last evening at nearby Pleasant Valley to C. I. Weaver, president of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

S. M. Crocker, president of the Columbia Gas System, Inc., gave the name "Weaver Compressor Station and Underground Gas Storage Project" in his dedication address.

The project, said Crocker, is part of Columbia's $40 million dollar construction program. He praised Weaver for "his foresight and initiative in the development of today's tremendous program of underground storage of gas."

As for persons wishing to install gas heating units, Crocker declared:

"Exactly how soon all demands for additional gas heating can be met, no one can say. We do promise, however, that there will be no lessening of our efforts in securing more gas from the Southwest and keeping our storage program abreast of the supply as long as the demand exists."

• • •

ORIGINALLY, there were only 15 wells used in the field dedicated today. At present there are 120 wells in an area of 144 square miles.

Company officials said the new Weaver station is being completed during this year at a cost of $1,200,000 and the gas transmission system for the project was redesigned at a cost of $1,500,000.

Also speaking at the ceremonies were State Utilities Commission Chairman Harry Miller and State Geologist John Melvin.

MARRIED 72 YEARS and on the same farm all that time, Mr. and Mrs. Allison Young, 92 and 91, mark wedding anniversary at Battlesburg, O. They have one daughter who has been married 46 years, another married 45 years, and a third married 36 years. (International)

Inquest Slated

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—An inquest was to be held today at the Franklin County jail in the deaths of three men run down by an auto early Saturday as they were pushing their stalled car on the outskirts of Columbus.

Driver of the station wagon that killed Forrest C. Carroll, 35; Melvin Campbell, 18, and Henry Harrison, 25, was Louis R. Trembly Jr., of fashionable suburban Upper Arlington.

Inmates Stomp In Protest

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—All apparently was peaceful and serene today at the suburban Warrensville workhouse, but not so last night.

Some 200 inmates of the institution broke windows, threw cups and banged the floors late yesterday in protest of what they called "poor sanitary facilities."

The prisoners complained that they were "packed in like sardines and did not have proper toilet and bath arrangements."

Cleveland police summoned to the workhouse found all the inmates in their beds and well-behaved, however, when they arrived to investigate the commotion.

Mutton Receipts Soar At County Livestock Sale

Sheep and lambs receipts nearly doubled in volume at this week's Pickaway County Livestock Cooperative Association auctions, keeping the total sales well above the 1,000 mark.

Although sales in that category increased, the other three categories suffered decreases, while prices remained near stationary in all sales with exception of sale of calves.

Calf prices took an unusually large jump in the Wednesday market, prices, soaring more than $10 for all grades. Most perceptible increase was in "culls to medium" calves, which sold at $17-30 Wednesday as compared to $7-9.20 last week.

Sheep and lambs receipts totaled 514 head Wednesday, an increase of 242 head over the 272 sold last week. Largest drop in sales was noted in hog markets, where receipts totaled only 425 Wednesday, a drop of 225 head compared to the 650 on market last week. Total market volume was recorded at 1,225 head.

Following is a complete report of this week's market:

Sohio Walkout Settlement Seen

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—Quick settlement of wage disputes at three Standard Oil Co. plants was expected today following settlement of a fourth walkout in Cleveland.

Members of Local 395 of the CIO-Oil Workers Union ended their 12-week-old strike at Sohio's No. 1 refinery last night by ratifying a contract offer they had rejected Friday.

The workers agreed to a 20-cent increase and will return to work tomorrow morning on their regular shifts.

Negotiations will be resumed shortly in an effort to settle work stoppages involving some 900 workers at two other plants in Cleveland and a refinery in Toledo.

Milk Price Drop Is Anticipated

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30 — Cuts of one cent a quart in Akron and Youngstown milk prices were expected today to bring similar drops in the Cleveland area within the next few days.

The new price of milk in Akron and Youngstown is 21 cents a quart on regular milk.

The Meyer Dairy Co. announced a similar cut earlier this week, but other Cleveland distributors have not as yet followed suit.

Compressor Opened By Gas Firm

Project Is Part Of Huge Program

MANSFIELD, Sept. 30 — A new compressor station and a huge underground storage project were dedicated last evening at nearby Pleasant Valley to C. I. Weaver, president of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co.

S. M. Crocker, president of the Columbia Gas System, Inc., gave the name "Weaver Compressor Station and Underground Gas Storage Project" in his dedication address.

The project, said Crocker, is part of Columbia's $40 million dollar construction program. He praised Weaver for "his foresight and initiative in the development of today's tremendous program of underground storage of gas."

As for persons wishing to install gas heating units, Crocker declared:

"Exactly how soon all demands for additional gas heating can be met, no one can say. We do promise, however, that there will be no lessening of our efforts in securing more gas from the Southwest and keeping our storage program abreast of the supply as long as the demand exists."

• • •

ORIGINALLY, there were only 15 wells used in the field dedicated today. At present there are 120 wells in an area of 144 square miles.

Company officials said the new Weaver station is being completed during this year at a cost of $1,200,000 and the gas transmission system for the project was redesigned at a cost of $1,500,000.

Also speaking at the ceremonies were State Utilities Commission Chairman Harry Miller and State Geologist John Melvin.

Inquest Slated

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—An inquest was to be held today at the Franklin County jail in the deaths of three men run down by an auto early Saturday as they were pushing their stalled car on the outskirts of Columbus.

Driver of the station wagon that killed Forrest C. Carroll, 35; Melvin Campbell, 18, and Henry Harrison, 25, was Louis R. Trembly Jr., of fashionable suburban Upper Arlington.

Inmates Stomp In Protest

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30 — All apparently was peaceful and serene today at the suburban Warrensville workhouse, but not so last night.

Some 200 inmates of the institution broke windows, threw cups and banged the floors late yesterday in protest of what they called "poor sanitary facilities."

The prisoners complained that they were "packed in like sardines and did not have proper toilet and bath arrangements."

Cleveland police summoned to the workhouse found all the inmates in their beds and well-behaved, however, when they arrived to investigate the commotion.

Mutton Receipts Soar At County Livestock Sale

Sheep and lambs receipts nearly doubled in volume at this week's Pickaway County Livestock Cooperative Association auctions, keeping the total sales well above the 1,000 mark.

Although sales in that category increased, the other three categories suffered decreases, while prices remained near stationary in all sales with exception of sale of calves.

Calf prices took an unusually large jump in the Wednesday market, prices, soaring more than $10 for all grades. Most perceptible increase was in "culls to medium" calves, which sold at $17-30 Wednesday as compared to $7-9.20 last week.

Sheep and lambs receipts totaled 514 head Wednesday, an increase of 242 head over the 272 sold last week. Largest drop in sales was noted in hog markets, where receipts totaled only 425 Wednesday, a drop of 225 head compared to the 650 on market last week. Total market volume was recorded at 1,225 head.

Sohio Walkout Settlement Seen

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—Quick settlement of wage disputes at three Standard Oil Co. plants was expected today following settlement of a fourth walkout in Cleveland.

Members of Local 395 of the CIO-Oil Workers Union ended their 12-week-old strike at Sohio's No. 1 refinery last night by ratifying a contract offer they had rejected Friday.

The workers agreed to a 20-cent increase and will return to work tomorrow morning on their regular shifts.

Negotiations will be resumed shortly in an effort to settle work stoppages involving some 900 workers at two other plants in Cleveland and a refinery in Toledo.

Milk Price Drop Is Anticipated

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30 — Cuts of one cent a quart in Akron and Youngstown milk prices were expected today to bring similar drops in the Cleveland area within the next few days.

The new price of milk in Akron and Youngstown is 21 cents a quart on regular milk.

The Meyer Dairy Co. announced a similar cut earlier this week, but other Cleveland distributors have not as yet followed suit.

WARTS, FLAT FEET OUT

Army Feels It To Get 'Dregs' Under New Draft

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—As yet, top-ranking officers aren't saying much about it for publication, but the Army is seriously worried over what it considers "dangerous limitations" in the new peacetime draft.

Perhaps the nearest to an open expression of their opinion came last week from a somewhat surprising source—Gen. Lewis B. Hershey director of the Selective Service system itself.

Without mincing words, Hershey said that he was afraid the provisions of the peacetime draft would result in calling into service only the "least-favored" classes in the country. He added:

"It's almost impossible to find anyone who's a non-veteran, a non-father, under 25 years of age, and capable of passing physical examinations for entry into the armed services."

Supporters of the new law say the situation is not as bad as Hershey paints it. But key officers in the national defense personnel setup insist that it's even worse. And, because of its comparatively more difficult recruiting problems, the Army finds itself in the worst shape of the three service branches.

* * *

CURRENTLY, the Army is asking for 10,000 men in November, 15,000 in December and 25,000 monthly thereafter until it has reached its maximum allowed strength.

To show why the draft situation has become almost exclusively an Army problem, it is only necessary to point out that the Navy, for the second straight month, has had to stop accepting so-called "first enlistments"—meaning others than reenlistment extensions and the like—before the end of the month in order to avoid exceeding its recruiting quota.

But that is hardly the case with the Army, and the Army is worried. In addition to the deferment factors mentioned by Hershey, the generals point out that there is a seemingly endless list of occupational deferments which drain off the available manpower pool in almost spectacular gushes.

Needless to say, the type of man who would be considered indispensable in a vital civilian occupation is quite often exactly the type of man the Army feels it needs.

This idea of taking the "dregs"—the generals' own word—of leadership, intelligence, experience and education is not at all appealing to the Army. And from his statement, it would not seem to be making Hershey happy.

However, the greatest complaint concerns the recent presidential directive which listed 147 diseases, ailments, deformities and the like which may "disqualify a registrant for service."

Still hesitant to speak out publicly, the generals contend in private discussions that many of the disqualifying points are utterly ridiculous, insofar as forming a modern Army is concerned.

* * *

FOR INSTANCE, there are such hangovers from the past war as flat feet which are reiterated as cause for deferment.

With the record of countless flat-footed amateur and professional athletes who (through no fault of their own) lived more strenuous physical lives as civilians than most soldiers during the past war, such a deferment point seems ludicrous to a good many GIs as well as the Generals.

Besides, the Army figures it could spot such draftees in positions where their ailments wouldn't be the slightest handicap—while their other abilities would be of inestimable value.

That also goes, of course, for the deferment point about having a wart on a "weight-bearing area"—where a field-pack shoulder-strap might touch, for instance—as well as the ones about eyelid deformities, deep scars, losses of a thumb, and other points in the long list of "obvious" physical defects.

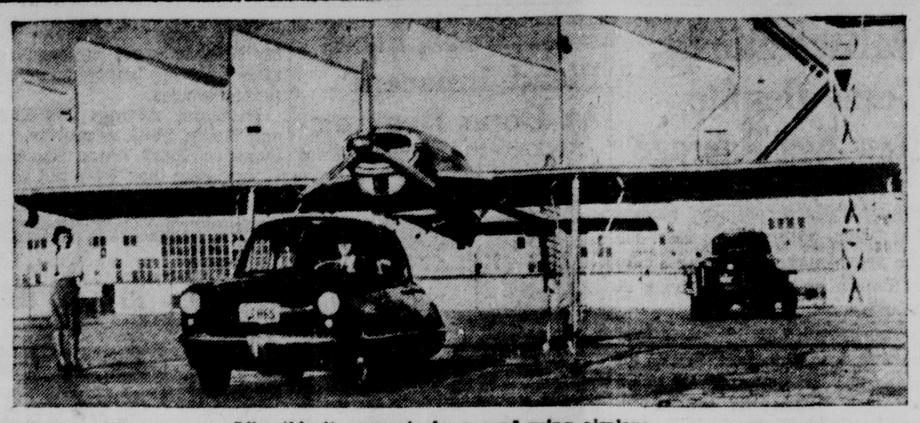

That list would get gales of bitter laughter from any of the boys who were patched up in Army hospitals, time after time, and sent back to the front.

Finally, Army leaders feel that the directive leaves countless loopholes for so-called "smart boys" who wish to avoid the draft.

The directed deferment of those handicapped by stuttering or suffering from "alcoholism" are typical examples of their point. With due regard for those actually handicapped in that manner, the former ailment is a simple thing to take—particularly since months may elapse between registration and induction.

And as for the latter, a single extended spree, climaxed perhaps with an arrest or two for "drunkenness" would seem to be adequate for avoiding the draft. The Army doesn't like it.

One hundred years ago the first iron made from Lake Superior was tapped at the Carp River forge in Michigan.

Like this it seems to be a road-going airplane . . .

But like this it's a flying automobile.

THIS NEW FANDANGO in the transportation world is the Hall flying automobile, in action at San Diego, Cal. You just back the plastic-bodied auto under the jacked-up wings (as above), hook on and zoom! You're airborne (as at right). The jacks are built-in for easy conversion from ground to air operations. Cruising speed is 100 miles an hour by air and 67 on the ground, getting 45 miles to the gallon of pasoline. Refinements of regular passenger automobiles are included, with fluid drive, low-pressure tires and four-wheel brakes. (International)

Circleville Has Lost Its Only Hole-In-The-Wall Business

A special brand of trading well-known to the Circleville shopper and sportsman was ended Thursday.

"Hole-in-the-wall" business, conducted under the second National Bank on West Main street for nearly 58 years, ceased Thursday as its wares were brought out into the sunlight aond displayed in an adjoining street level, building.

Known currently as Pick's Hole-In-The-Wall, the business was founded in 1891 by Stevens Bros., who sold fruits, nuts and tobaccos in the Hole.

Fred Fissell took over the concern in 1900, adding items such as fishing tackle, watches, novelties, magazines and candies over a period of 47 years.

Bill Pickens, present owner, bought the business nearly two years ago, keeping the same type stock sold by Fissell and adding innovations of his own.

The business was moved Wednesday into the next-door building, and the "hole" is to be used as a storeroom by the bank.

Pickens will offer the same line of stock in his new shop, ranging from peanuts, cap pistols, watches and tobaccos to balloons, magazines and candies.

Worms Causing Sheep Ailments

Several ailments of sheep, including "nodular disease," "stomach worm disease" and "black scours," are caused by worms.

Main attack by successful sheep men, therefore, is directed against development or reproduction of the offending worms. While most of the eggs and young worms of these parasites are destroyed in winter, sheep must be treated to prevent entry of worms into the intestinal tract.

Army Feels It To Get 'Dregs' Under New Draft

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—As yet, top-ranking officers aren't saying much about it for publication, but the Army is seriously worried over what it considers "dangerous limitations" in the new peacetime draft.

Perhaps the nearest to an open expression of their opinion came last week from a somewhat surprising source—Gen. Lewis B. Hershey director of the Selective Service system itself.

Without mincing words, Hershey said that he was afraid the provisions of the peacetime draft would result in calling into service only the "least-favored" classes in the country. He added:

"It's almost impossible to find anyone who's a non-veteran, a non-father, under 25 years of age, and capable of passing physical examinations for entry into the armed services."

Supporters of the new law say the situation is not as bad as Hershey paints it. But key officers in the national defense personnel setup insist that it's even worse. And, because of its comparatively more difficult recruiting problems, the Army finds itself in the worst shape of the three service branches.

* * *

CURRENTLY, the Army is asking for 10,000 men in November, 15,000 in December and 25,000 monthly thereafter until it has reached its maximum allowed strength.

To show why the draft situation has become almost exclusively an Army problem, it is only necessary to point out that the Navy, for the second straight month, has had to stop accepting so-called "first enlistments"—meaning others than reenlistment extensions and the like—before the end of the month in order to avoid exceeding its recruiting quota.

But that is hardly the case with the Army, and the Army is worried. In addition to the deferment factors mentioned by Hershey, the generals point out that there is a seemingly endless list of occupational deferments which drain off the available manpower pool in almost spectacular gushes.

Needless to say, the type of man who would be considered indispensable in a vital civilian occupation is quite often exactly the type of man the Army feels it needs.

This idea of taking the "dregs"—the generals' own word—of leadership, intelligence, experience and education is not at all appealing to the Army. And from his statement, it would not seem to be making Hershey happy.

However, the greatest complaint concerns the recent presidential directive which listed 147 diseases, ailments, deformities and the like which may "disqualify a registrant for service."

Still hesitant to speak out publicly, the generals contend in private discussions that many of the disqualifying points are utterly ridiculous, insofar as forming a modern Army is concerned.

* * *

FOR INSTANCE, there are such hangovers from the past war as flat feet which are reiterated as cause for deferment.

With the record of countless flat-footed amateur and professional athletes who (through no fault of their own) lived more strenuous physical lives as civilians than most soldiers during the past war, such a deferment point seems ludicrous to a good many GIs as well as the Generals.

Besides, the Army figures it could spot such draftees in positions where their ailments wouldn't be the slightest handicap—while their other abilities would be of inestimable value.

That also goes, of course, for the deferment point about having a wart on a "weight-bearing area"—where a field-pack shoulder-strap might touch, for instance—as well as the ones about eyelid deformities, deep scars, losses of a thumb, and other points in the long list of "obvious" physical defects.

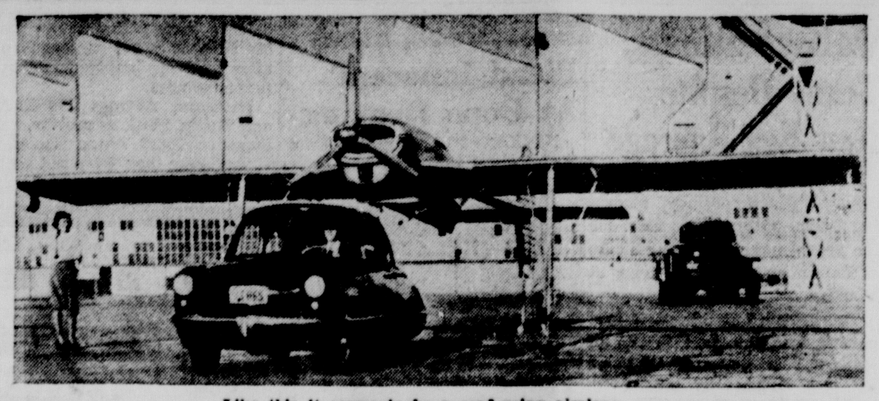

That list would get gales of bitter laughter from any of the boys who were patched up in Army hospitals, time after time, and sent back to the front.

Finally, Army leaders feel that the directive leaves countless loopholes for so-called "smart boys" who wish to avoid the draft.

The directed deferment of those handicapped by stuttering or suffering from "alcoholism" are typical examples of their point. With due regard for those actually handicapped in that manner, the former ailment is a simple thing to take—particularly since months may elapse between registration and induction.

And as for the latter, a single extended spree, climaxed perhaps with an arrest or two for "drunkenness" would seem to be adequate for avoiding the draft. The Army doesn't like it.

One hundred years ago the first iron made from Lake Superior was tapped at the Carp River forge in Michigan.

Like this it seems to be a road-going airplane . . .

But like this it's a flying automobile.

THIS NEW FANDANGO in the transportation world is the Hall flying automobile, in action at San Diego, Cal. You just back the plastic-bodied auto under the jacked-up wings (as above), hook on and zoom! You're airborne (as at right). The jacks are built-in for easy conversion from ground to air operations. Cruising speed is 100 miles an hour by air and 67 on the ground, getting 45 miles to the gallon of pasoline. Refinements of regular passenger automobiles are included, with fluid drive, low-pressure tires and four-wheel brakes. (International)

Circleville Has Lost Its Only Hole-In-The-Wall Business

A special brand of trading well-known to the Circleville shopper and sportsman was ended Thursday.

"Hole-in-the-wall" business, conducted under the second National Bank on West Main street for nearly 58 years, ceased Thursday as its wares were brought out into the sunlight aond displayed in an adjoining street level, building.

Known currently as Pick's Hole-In-The-Wall, the business was founded in 1891 by Stevens Bros., who sold fruits, nuts and tobaccos in the Hole.

Fred Fissell took over the concern in 1900, adding items such as fishing tackle, watches, novelties, magazines and candies over a period of 47 years.

Bill Pickens, present owner, bought the business nearly two years ago, keeping the same type stock sold by Fissell and adding innovations of his own.

The business was moved Wednesday into the next-door building, and the "hole" is to be used as a storeroom by the bank.

Pickens will offer the same line of stock in his new shop, ranging from peanuts, cap pistols, watches and tobaccos to balloons, magazines and candies.

Worms Causing Sheep Ailments

Several ailments of sheep, including "nodular disease," "stomach worm disease" and "black scours," are caused by worms.

Main attack by successful sheep men, therefore, is directed against development or reproduction of the offending worms. While most of the eggs and young worms of these parasites are destroyed in winter, sheep must be treated to prevent entry of worms into the intestinal tract.

Chilly Days Ahead For Belmonters

Solon Would End Heating Pact

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Sept. 30—Cold feet of employes in the Belmont County courthouse and cold shivers of inmates of the adjoining jail have come to the attention of the courts.

Clyde C. Hardesty, who is chairman of the Belmont County board of commissioners, has petitioned common pleas court for a restraining order against purchase and installation of new boilers for the building's heating system.

Hardesty, in his petition, declared that he had moved in mid-July to purchase new boilers under the misbelief that a state inspector had condemned the old boilers.

Hardesty said he learned later that it was an insurance inspector who condemned the boilers.

* * *

HE CLAIMED that there is no certificate from the county auditor showing that $23,261 needed for installation, is available and therefore a contract with an Erie, Pa., firm is illegal.

The commissioner engaged a man last week to repair the boilers and ordered them fired. However, Vincent J. Reasbeck and Wayne L. Hays, the two other county commissioners, have threatened to "fire" the engineers if they fire the boilers.

With cool weather coming on, courthouse employes are very much interested in the outcome of the squabble.

Meanwhile, potential lawbreakers were warned by Sheriff Cloyd Barricklow to keep out of trouble and out of his cold, cold jail.

Bids Sought

General improvement of 4.9 miles of Route 62 in Darby Township will be opened for bids by the state highway department at 10 a. m., Oct. 8, in the State Office Building, Columbus.

The job calls for grading, draining, paving, widening and resurfacing with asphaltic concrete at an estimated cost of $160,000. Completion date has been set for Sept. 30, 1949.

Retail Volume Now Appears On Hike Again

After last week's plunge compared with sales two weeks ago, Pickaway County sales tax receipts appeared on the upgrade again with a slight increase noted.

For the week ending Sept. 18, receipts here totalled $3,843.16, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported. This figure represents an increase of $85.58 over the report released last Thursday.

While some recovery is shown in recent fluctuating sales, receipts for last week are $419.50 below sales of the corresponding week of a year ago.

Total collections for this year amount to $157,068.44, revealing a marked increase in business volume over the same period of last year when receipts totalled $136,654.98, Ebright said.

Balance in the state treasury at the close of Sept. 24, was reported to be $253,191,777.30 with expenditures at $11,140,747.45, the treasurer disclosed.

Husband Slayer Set For Hearing

LANCASTER, Sept. 30—Mrs. Betty Gest, 29, mother of five, indicted for the first degree murder of her husband, was slated today for a formal hearing in Lancaster after she was declared insane.

Common Pleas Judge Harry Kilburger was expected to set the date for the sanity hearing before the end of the week.

A report from the Lima state hospital stated Mrs. Gest is "legally insane and cannot be considered as being responsible for her behavior."

She admitted the shotgun slaying of her husband David, 46, at their Buckeye Lake home last Aug. 4, while he lay sleeping and the next room. The other two children were in foster homes.

Wallace Stumps Texas Despite New Egg Barrage

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 30 — Henry Wallace continued stumping Texas today in his fight for the presidency after being hit by a tomato and egg barrage at Houston.

The renewed outbreak of food pelting was the first incident since the Progressive Party nominee began his second invasion of the South.

Police said that John Staskiel, 30-year-old National Maritime Union member from Kulpmont, Pa., admitted tossing the missiles. Staskiel said he had been shipping out of Houston for 14 years.

They quoted him as saying he had thrown four eggs and a tomato because "Wallace is in contact with Ferdinand Smith, one of the leading Communists.

Smith, national secretary of the CIO-National Maritime Union until his ouster last June in a purge of left-wingers, is currently under deportation orders. He is an alien and a native of the British West Indies.

Authorities reported three Houston boys also had admitted throwing five tomatoes at Wallace as he prepared to deliver his address before a third party rally in the city auditorium.

Police rescued Staskiel from the angry crowd that swarmed over him after the egging incident. One person threw a crutch at him and others tried to hit him in the face.

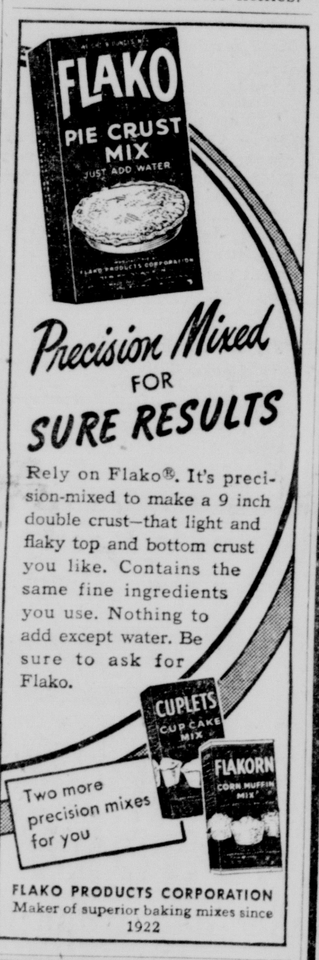

Hollywood Stars Plead Innocent At Dope Hearing

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30—Film Star Robert Mitchum began his defense preparation today for his Nov. 22 court appearance after pleading innocent to marijuana charges.

Mitchum, Actress Lila Leeds and Robin Ford, a realtor, told Superior Court Judge Thomas L. Ambrose they were not guilty of the charges. Dancer Vicki Evans did not plead yesterday and her attorney will argue dismissal for lack of evidence Oct. 7.

Attorney Jerry Giesler attempted to have the indictment quashed by stating it might have been written "in Japanese, Chinese or hieroglyphics."

He told the court concerning the description of marijuana: "This indictment refers to flowering tops of hemp. I always thought hemp was used to make rope."

Dependency Destroys Human Character

THE CHARACTER OF OUR PEOPLE is the strongest asset of our nation, and making sickness and idleness too easy places a premium on the destruction of character.

HE CLAIMED that there is no certificate from the county auditor showing that $23,261 needed for installation, is available and therefore a contract with an Erie, Pa., firm is illegal.

The commissioner engaged a man last week to repair the boilers and ordered them fired. However, Vincent J. Reasbeck and Wayne L. Hays, the two other county commissioners, have threatened to "fire" the engineers if they fire the boilers.

With cool weather coming on, courthouse employes are very much interested in the outcome of the squabble.

Meanwhile, potential lawbreakers were warned by Sheriff Cloyd Barricklow to keep out of trouble and out of his cold, cold jail.

Retail Volume Now Appears On Hike Again

After last week's plunge compared with sales two weeks ago, Pickaway County sales tax receipts appeared on the upgrade again with a slight increase noted.

For the week ending Sept. 18, receipts here totalled $3,843.16, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported. This figure represents an increase of $85.58 over the report released last Thursday.

While some recovery is shown in recent fluctuating sales, receipts for last week are $419.50 below sales of the corresponding week of a year ago.

Total collections for this year amount to $157,068.44, revealing a marked increase in business volume over the same period of last year when receipts totalled $136,654.98, Ebright said.

Balance in the state treasury at the close of Sept. 24, was reported to be $253,191,777.30 with expenditures at $11,140,747.45, the treasurer disclosed.

Husband Slayer Set For Hearing

LANCASTER, Sept. 30—Mrs. Betty Gest, 29, mother of five, indicted for the first degree murder of her husband, was slated today for a formal hearing in Lancaster after she was declared insane.

Common Pleas Judge Harry Kilburger was expected to set the date for the sanity hearing before the end of the week.

A report from the Lima state hospital stated Mrs. Gest is "legally insane and cannot be considered as being responsible for her behavior."

She admitted the shotgun slaying of her husband David, 46, at their Buckeye Lake home last Aug. 4, while he lay sleeping and the next room. The other two children were in foster homes.

Wallace Stumps Texas Despite New Egg Barrage

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 30 — Henry Wallace continued stumping Texas today in his fight for the presidency after being hit by a tomato and egg barrage at Houston.

The renewed outbreak of food pelting was the first incident since the Progressive Party nominee began his second invasion of the South.

Police said that John Staskiel, 30-year-old National Maritime Union member from Kulpmont, Pa., admitted tossing the missiles. Staskiel said he had been shipping out of Houston for 14 years.

They quoted him as saying he had thrown four eggs and a tomato because "Wallace is in contact with Ferdinand Smith, one of the leading Communists.

Smith, national secretary of the CIO-National Maritime Union until his ouster last June in a purge of left-wingers, is currently under deportation orders. He is an alien and a native of the British West Indies.

Authorities reported three Houston boys also had admitted throwing five tomatoes at Wallace as he prepared to deliver his address before a third party rally in the city auditorium.

Police rescued Staskiel from the angry crowd that swarmed over him after the egging incident. One person threw a crutch at him and others tried to hit him in the face.

Hollywood Stars Plead Innocent At Dope Hearing

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30—Film Star Robert Mitchum began his defense preparation today for his Nov. 22 court appearance after pleading innocent to marijuana charges.

Mitchum, Actress Lila Leeds and Robin Ford, a realtor, told Superior Court Judge Thomas L. Ambrose they were not guilty of the charges. Dancer Vicki Evans did not plead yesterday and her attorney will argue dismissal for lack of evidence Oct. 7.

Attorney Jerry Giesler attempted to have the indictment quashed by stating it might have been written "in Japanese, Chinese or hieroglyphics."

He told the court concerning the description of marijuana:

"This indictment refers to flowering tops of hemp. I always thought hemp was used to make rope."

Dependency Destroys Human Character

THE CHARACTER OF OUR PEOPLE is the strongest asset of our nation, and making sickness and idleness too easy places a premium on the destruction of character.

Egg Ratio Seen Hiking Profits

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Vigorous pullets going into laying houses ready to start Fall and Winter egg production look like good bets for profits to poultry husbandry specialists at Ohio State university.

For the first time in several years the poultryman will be on the bright side of the feed-egg ratio so profits from the flock will depend upon the rate of lay the flockowner gets from his birds.

Most poultrymen now provide good rations for their hens, either by mixing home grown grains according to directions given in Ohio extension service bulletins or by buying feeds already mixed. The bulletins on feed mixing, flock management and disease control can be obtained free from any county agricultural agent.

University poultry specialists advise all flock owners to start their birds on deep litter for the poultry house floor.

* * *

THE DEEP litter lessens the labor of keeping the house clean, insulates the floor during cold winter weather, and may help in holding down losses from disease outbreaks. The deep litter system takes less total litter during a production period.

Poultrymen can reduce the amount of work required to clean eggs by installing colony nest boxes in the laying house. Level roosts and screened dropping pits also hold down the number of eggs requiring cleaning before they can be sold at top prices. County agents have bulletins showing how to build community nests and level roosts.

Installation of a water system which keeps fresh, clean water before the birds at all times is one of the easiest ways to help egg production and to reduce work in caring for the flock. A handy workman can build an automatic poultry waterer from plans given in one of the extension bulletins.

An experimental rolling mill has been developed which reduces a 100-foot-long strip of metal 1-40 in. thick to a mile-long strip 1-2,000 in. thick, about one-third the diameter of a cat's whisker.

'Salesman' Held After Pushing Mining Stock

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Laurance Huntington, 69, of Los Angles, was held in Franklin County jail today under $20,000 bond, indicted for swindling $40,000 from about 15 investors.

Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett charged that between October 1946 and 1947, Huntington sold stock in a "Huntington Chemical Co.," when the stock was not registered with the state and Huntington was not registered as a salesman.

Bartlett said the elderly man represented that he held a lease on manganese-bearing land and that he had a $316,000 federal government commitment to purchase manganese sulphate for fertilizer.

The prosecutor further charged Huntington's only assets when arrested were a Cadillac car and a truck. He said one of the investors investigated Huntington's claims and found only "a hole in the ground" in Death Valley.

Family Left Destitute By Fire

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30 — Dale G. Vance, his wife and three children were left homeless and nearly destitute today by a blaze that leveled their home near Columbus late Tuesday.

Columbus firemen said they were unable to save even part of the house and its furnishings because they had only 100 gallons of water on their pump truck with which to fight the fire. They said unofficially the damage would be about $10,000.

Prairie and Brown-Norwich firemen were asked to bring water, but the house and two outbuildings were destroyed by the time they arrived.

One daughter, Alma Vance, 16, was in the home at the time of the fire, but said she knew nothing of it until a neighbor, Kenneth Ary, told her flames were spreading from a small shed along electric wires, to the house.

Neighbors and motorists saved a few pieces of furniture from the blazing building before the flames forced them back.

She Whistle Or Just Lisp?

MONTEREY PARK, Cal., Sept. 30—Four youths will define a whistle from a lisp hereafter—or else be more cautious.

The youths contended that 14-year-old Mary Torri whistled at them. They followed her into the driveway of her home here. She denied the whistling. She said it must have been the lisping sound from the braces on her teeth.

Two boys were fined $100 each. The other pair $75 apiece.

Health Workers Stage Strike

AKRON, Sept. 30 — Maintenance employes of the Edwin C. Shaw tuberculosis sanitorium in Akron continued an "up and down" sit down strike today in an effort to enforce their demands for a 25-cent hourly wage boost.

The workers said yesterday that they would perform only work necessary to the health of the 120 patients at the county institution.

However, a trustee of the hospital said last night that "any worker who refuses to obey orders tomorrow morning will be fired on the spot."

Members of Local 800, of the CIO-United Public Workers of America, originally had scheduled a "work holiday" to start yesterday but modified the plan to sit-down tactics.

THE MAGIC of Sterling—Who doesn't love solid silver and want it—there is magic in its sheen. "Courtship" is International's romantic young pattern. There is something about the design of tiny flowers—the slender shaft of silver—just made for a new monogram. It has a sleek, graceful shape—is pretty, feminine. A starter set of knife, fork, salad fork and tea spoon would cost only $15.38. What a nice way to secure a set of Sterling.

And so far there is no record that Mrs. Bransten did anything contrary to the law, except her own acknowledgement that if she talked it would incriminate her—and legally the statement does not raise the presumption of guilt no matter what you or I may think about it.

There is, however, this essential difference between John D. Rockefeller Jr. and this lady. Through his foundations or personally, he has publicly accounted for his contributions. The American people can know how he spent his money. Mrs. B. B. B. inherited her money from a fine father who earned it in canned groceries. She has spent her money without notifying the public.

That, too, is legally her right. She can spend it on dogs, cats, philosophies, artists, men and women, spies and jewelry, Communists or Prohibitionists as she will. It is all within the law.

So how does this nation protect itself against its own sons and daughters? Ask Jan Masaryk! Maybe now he knows.

TRIBE BOSS ONE OF FEW

Gus Fan Likes Bill Veeck; He Gives Gus A Break

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—The nicest thing that Bill Veeck has ever done in all his years as a baseball executive was his gesture of recognition for the average baseball fan.

The head of the Cleveland Indians apparently has the strange notion that the spectator rates his day in the limelight and thus a fellow named Joe Earley makes the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Joe Earley is a Clevelander who last night was honored by the Cleveland club as Mr. Average Baseball Fan in an incidental sidelight to the virtual clinching of the American League pennant by the Indians.

Up to now the baseball fan has been a character who paid the freight and in his strange way of thinking was always looking for an excuse to put on a day for a hero of the home club.

* * *

THE HERO of the moment receives an automobile as a starting gift, an assortment of handsome luggage, perhaps a sack of golf canes, furs for the missus, if any, and other bric-a-brac.

The honored player may be making as much as $50,000 a year and is lavished with gifts by fans who can barely afford the price of a ticket.

So Veeck put on "Joe Earley Night" last night when the Indians beat the White Sox, and the other clubs could easily follow suit.

They won't. Instead they will figure out ways to raise the prices of tickets, many observers agree.

Veeck and just one or two other big league managements really think in terms of giving the customer a full run for his money. The others cling to the old-fashioned notion that to present the game of baseball to the public is a sort of hallowed mission.

Some of the magnates appear convinced that they own the game. Actually it belongs to the Joe Earleys—and Veeck knows it.

He wants to keep the Joe Earleys coming and he offers the best entertainment to be found today.

NOT ONLY that, but he is about to give his Cleveland customers the big jackpot—the American League pennant and then perhaps the grand supercollosal prize, the world championship.

It should be of interest to the Cleveland fans to know that they are getting more for their money than the fans anywhere else in the nation.

They seem to know it. In fact, they honored Veeck not so long ago.

The relations between the club and the fans in Cleveland is perhaps the best in baseball, and that was built by Veeck on a foundation of bickering that had lasted for years.

He is a smart guy and a great showman in a great baseball city and the Joe Earleys are lucky to have him around.

Birds, Saints Bow To Rains; To Go Tonight

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Old Jupe Pluvius willing, the American Association playoffs will be resumed here tonight with Veteran Red Bird Charlie Stanceu facing Morrie Martin of the St. Paul Saints.

Last night's game was rained out, leaving St. Paul in the driver's seat, 2-1. No game was scheduled for Tuesday.

However, it was a tossup which team the two-day layoff benefited most. It gave plenty of rest to some crippled Columbus players, but it did the same for a tired St. Paul pitching staff.

The teams stay in Columbus until it's decided which one will go up against Montreal in the International League for the Little World Series. Montreal got its berth yesterday with a 7-3 win over Syracuse that ended that playoff 4-1.

The Birds and the Saints may know which one gets in the really big money by Friday and again it may take until Sunday.

Ohioan Signed

MARTINS FERRY, Sept. 30—Robert Heidelbach, 18-year- old Shadyside shortstop, has been signed by Eddie Krajnik, scout for the Philadelphia Phillies. He will report to Appleton in the Wisconsin State League next Spring.

DEFIANCE, Sept. 30—There will be no Defiance vs. Napoleon football game Friday because of the polio epidemic in Defiance.

The game has been postponed until Nov. 15, on the advice of Henry County health authorities.

The quarantining action came as two new polio cases, the seventh and eighth in eight days were reported in Defiance.

They were Mrs. Charles Parker, 36, a beauty operator, and Mrs. James Lenhart, 24, Adams Township housewife, who raised the total number of cases in the current epidemic to 28.

Short's Pacer Grabs Feature

Harry Short's colt pacer, Delaware Chief, which took third in straight heats at the Pickaway County Fair's $1000 3-Year-Old Pace Stake, did better in Kentucky Wednesday.

The colt went the mile in 2.06 4-5 and captured a $600 purse along with the Al Saunders Trophy at the current Lexington Trots.

Air Pilot, owned and driven by George Van Camp of Circleville, started against Delaware Chief but faded in the stretch drive.

'Flying Cleat' Latest Trophy

DAYTON, Sept. 30 — Dayton university and Marshall college have a new exchange football trophy for which to vie.

The symbol of supremacy is the battered shoe, painted gold, of one of Dayton's grid immortals. Known as the "Flying Cleat," it was transported to the Marshall campus by chartered plane.

Now, the idea is for the UD Fliers to win the trophy back in their 1948 home opener a week from Saturday.

THE MAGIC of Sterling—Who doesn't love solid silver and want it—there is magic in its sheen. "Courtship" is International's romantic young pattern. There is something about the design of tiny flowers—the slender shaft of silver—just made for a new monogram. It has a sleek, graceful shape—is pretty, feminine. A starter set of knife, fork, salad fork and tea spoon would cost only $15.38. What a nice way to secure a set of Sterling.

Sokolsky's

And so far there is no record that Mrs. Bransten did anything contrary to the law, except her own acknowledgement that if she talked it would incriminate her—and legally the statement does not raise the presumption of guilt no matter what you or I may think about it.

There is, however, this essential difference between John D. Rockefeller Jr. and this lady. Through his foundations or personally, he has publicly accounted for his contributions. The American people can know how he spent his money. Mrs. B. B. B. inherited her money from a fine father who earned it in canned groceries. She has spent her money without notifying the public.

That, too, is legally her right. She can spend it on dogs, cats, philosophies, artists, men and women, spies and jewelry, Communists or Prohibitionists as she will. It is all within the law.

So how does this nation protect itself against its own sons and daughters? Ask Jan Masaryk! Maybe now he knows.

TRIBE BOSS ONE OF FEW

Gus Fan Likes Bill Veeck; He Gives Gus A Break

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—The nicest thing that Bill Veeck has ever done in all his years as a baseball executive was his gesture of recognition for the average baseball fan.

The head of the Cleveland Indians apparently has the strange notion that the spectator rates his day in the limelight and thus a fellow named Joe Earley makes the Baseball Hall of Fame.

Joe Earley is a Clevelander who last night was honored by the Cleveland club as Mr. Average Baseball Fan in an incidental sidelight to the virtual clinching of the American League pennant by the Indians.

Up to now the baseball fan has been a character who paid the freight and in his strange way of thinking was always looking for an excuse to put on a day for a hero of the home club.

* * *

THE HERO of the moment receives an automobile as a starting gift, an assortment of handsome luggage, perhaps a sack of golf canes, furs for the missus, if any, and other bric-a-brac.

The honored player may be making as much as $50,000 a year and is lavished with gifts by fans who can barely afford the price of a ticket.

So Veeck put on "Joe Earley Night" last night when the Indians beat the White Sox, and the other clubs could easily follow suit.

They won't. Instead they will figure out ways to raise the prices of tickets, many observers agree.

Veeck and just one or two other big league managements really think in terms of giving the customer a full run for his money. The others cling to the old-fashioned notion that to present the game of baseball to the public is a sort of hallowed mission.

Some of the magnates appear convinced that they own the game. Actually it belongs to the Joe Earleys—and Veeck knows it.

He wants to keep the Joe Earleys coming and he offers the best entertainment to be found today.

NOT ONLY that, but he is about to give his Cleveland customers the big jackpot—the American League pennant and then perhaps the grand supercollosal prize, the world championship.

It should be of interest to the Cleveland fans to know that they are getting more for their money than the fans anywhere else in the nation.

They seem to know it. In fact, they honored Veeck not so long ago.

The relations between the club and the fans in Cleveland is perhaps the best in baseball, and that was built by Veeck on a foundation of bickering that had lasted for years.

He is a smart guy and a great showman in a great baseball city and the Joe Earleys are lucky to have him around.

Birds, Saints Bow To Rains; To Go Tonight

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Old Jupe Pluvius willing, the American Association playoffs will be resumed here tonight with Veteran Red Bird Charlie Stanceu facing Morrie Martin of the St. Paul Saints.

Last night's game was rained out, leaving St. Paul in the driver's seat, 2-1. No game was scheduled for Tuesday.

However, it was a tossup which team the two-day layoff benefited most. It gave plenty of rest to some crippled Columbus players, but it did the same for a tired St. Paul pitching staff.

The teams stay in Columbus until it's decided which one will go up against Montreal in the International League for the Little World Series. Montreal got its berth yesterday with a 7-3 win over Syracuse that ended that playoff 4-1.

The Birds and the Saints may know which one gets in the really big money by Friday and again it may take until Sunday.

Ohioan Signed

MARTINS FERRY, Sept. 30—Robert Heidelbach, 18-year-old Shadyside shortstop, has been signed by Eddie Krainik, scout for the Philadelphia Phillies. He will report to Appleton in the Wisconsin State League next Spring.

Short's Pacer Grabs Feature

Harry Short's colt pacer, Delaware Chief, which took third in straight heats at the Pickaway County Fair's $1000 3-Year-Old Pace Stake, did better in Kentucky Wednesday.

The colt went the mile in 2.06 4-5 and captured a $600 purse along with the Al Saunders Trophy at the current Lexington Trots.

Air Pilot, owned and driven by George Van Camp of Circleville, started against Delaware Chief but faded in the stretch drive.

'Flying Cleat' Latest Trophy

DAYTON, Sept. 30 — Dayton university and Marshall college have a new exchange football trophy for which to vie.

The symbol of supremacy is the battered shoe, painted gold, of one of Dayton's grid immortals. Known as the "Flying Cleat," it was transported to the Marshall campus by chartered plane.

Now, the idea is for the UD Fliers to win the trophy back in their 1948 home opener a week from Saturday.

Westerville Game Friday Promises To Be Gala Fete

Circleville football fans are promised a gala show Friday night when two gridiron aggregations will battle to protect unbeaten and untied records amid homecoming festivities.

Circleville's Red and Black clad is to play host to Westerville's Tigers in the Friday fracas, each team sporting two wins against no losses.

In addition to the skirmish and scramble of the two teams vying for a three-for-three record, Marilyn Hennis will be crowned "Homecoming Queen" at halftime. Other halftime attractions will include performances by both the CHS and Westerville bands.

The Red and Blackers are expected to have a rough go in their Friday battle, facing a well experience and deceptive aggregation.

* * *

WESTERVILLE, working from both the T and single wing formations, is highly touted as a tricky and hard-hitting team, clicking both on aerial and ground attacks.

While the local Tiger squad spent its first two Fridays of the season trimming Holy Rosary (27-14) and Hillsboro (14-0), the Westerville clan turned in a comparable performance by trimming Richwood (33-6) and West Jefferson (26-18).

Men to watch on the invading Tiger squad are R. Smith and Freeman in the backfield and the center, who was last year's Westerville starting fullback. All three are primed to give the locals an evening's battle.

Head Coach Steve Brudzinski and Line Coach Tom Bennett have been experimenting with the lineups going into the Friday tilt, adjusting linemen into the backfield and pulling tackles into end posts.

Charles Sabine, who toted the leather twice last Friday on a tackle reverse against Hillsboro, may get a crack at Westerville this Friday from the right halfback position.

* * *

BIG AND rough, Sabine is said to be second fastest man on the Tiger squad.

Other experimental changes have been to move Jim Starkey, good at intercepting forward passes, from the tackle to end and Bob Morgan, from guard to center.

The coaches agree that the lads are in good shape for this week's encounter, although Regular Right End Dean Smallwood still is nursing a cracked bone in his right hand.

Gametime Friday is at 8 p. m. An addition charge of 25 cents will be tacked onto the 75 cent who want to sit in midfield stands. Proceeds will pay for the new public address system.

SOX, YANKS HAVE HOPES

Can You Hear That Flag Flappin' In Cleveland?

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 — The Cleveland Indians are so close to the American League pennant today that, by straining their ears a little, they can hear it flapping in the breezes that blow in from Lake Erie.

All they need to clinch at least a tie for their first flag since Tris Speaker led the home forces to the promised land in 1920 is to win one of their three remaining games.

Bob Feller, the great comeback guy when the Indians needed him in the last gasps of the race, won his seventh straight and his 19th of the year by 5 to 2 over Chicago yesterday to all but clinch it.

Boston and New York also won after suffering virtual knockout defeats on Tuesday, and by this time cling to the merest flicker of hope.

The Red Sox' 5 to 1 victory over Washington and the Yanks' 4 to 2 edge on Philadelphia seemingly served only to prolong the agony.

* * *

WHILE the Indians idled today, Boston was to finish its Washington series with Mel Parnell against Early Wynn and the Yanks were to wind it up with the A's by sending Ed Lopat against Lou Brissie.

Then the Red Sox and Yanks will be idle on Friday and will tangle Saturday and Sunday in season-concluding games with each other.

That means one must be eliminated definitely while the Indians are completing their concluding series with Detroit.

It all adds up to the fact that the Indians must get a tie with one win and must take the pennant with two wins.

The Tigers, using Virgil Trucks or Dizzy Trout on the mound in the first game, then Fred Hutchinson and Hal Newhouser in the next two must beat Bob Lemon, Gene Bearden and Feller.

While Feller was winning a 10-hitter over the White Sox yesterday, Ellis Kinder gave up 11 hits in winning for Boston over Washington and Bob Porterfield scored his fifth win for the Yanks in beating the A's.

* * *

HOWEVER, the rookie needed help in the ninth and both Joe Page and Allie Reynolds were called upon to retire the side. Reynolds served up a double play ball to end it with the bags loaded.

Hal Newhouser became a 20-game winner for the fourth time when he won for Detroit by 4 to 0 over St. Louis.

In the National League, the Champion Boston Braves defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3, but suffered a jolt to their World Series hopes. Outfielder Jeff Heath, who has been going great at bat, suffered a leg fracture sliding into the plate and will be out of the big scuffle starting at Boston next Wednesday.

Cincinnati knocked Chicago back into the cellar with a 5 to 3 win.

The Pittsburgh Pirates moved into third place a half-game behind second-place Brooklyn by trimming the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 1 in a nite game behind Vic Lombardi's seven-hit pitching.

AL Flag Race 'Magic Number' Is Big 'Two'

All American League contenders—Cleveland, New York and Boston—won Wednesday, but the league-leading Indians nevertheless reduced the pennant "magic number" to two.

Any combination of Indian victories or Boston-New York defeats which totals two will give Cleveland its first pennant since 1920.

All contenders have three games left to play.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.	GB	GP
Cleveland	95	56	.629		3
New York	93	58	.616	2	3
Boston	93	58	.616	2	3

Schedule: Cleveland — Thursday, idle; Friday, Saturday and Sunday—single games with Detroit in Cleveland.

New York—Thursday, at Philadelphia; Friday, idle; Saturday and Sunday, single games with the Red Sox in Boston.

Boston —Thursday, at home with Washington; Friday, idle; Saturday and Sunday, single games at home with New York.

Redlegs Buy Montreal Star

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30—Warren Giles, president of the Cincinnati Reds, announced today he had paid cash and a player yet to be named for Veteran Infielder Jimmy Bloodworth of the Montreal Royals.

The second baseman, named most valuable player in the International League this year, batted for a .302 average during the regular season, rapping out 23 homers and knocking in 96 runs.

Giles also announced that Pitcher Johnny Hetki and Outfielder Bobby Usher had been transferred outright to Syracuse. Hetki pitched for Syracuse on option this year and Usher was with Syracuse and Tulsa.

West Indian Dies From Ring Blow

CHICAGO, Sept. 30—A 22-year-old welterweight prizefighter from the Dominican Republic died today after being knocked out in Chicago Stadium.

The victim, the year's second in the same ring, was Felix Antonio Gomez, of New York City and Santo Domingo. He fought professionally as Kid Dinamita.

The West Indian was floored in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout by Bobby McQuiller of Port Huron, Mich.

He died less than five hours later in Cook County hospital, where physicians worked feverishly to save his life.

Mixed Foursome Match Postponed

Selective drive, mixed foursome golf match, scheduled for Sunday at the Pickaway Country Club, has been postponed until the following Sunday by club heads.

Ed Amey, club manager, said tee-off time the following Sunday was set for 1 p. m., with a wiener roast to follow match play.

Winners in the match will be awarded golf balls as prizes.

Old Hard Luck Mare Gets Good Ride By Bucks

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Ohio State was riding that old hard luck mare as hard as she'd go with at least half a dozen Bucks on the doubtful list or out of the Southern Cal game Saturday, the crying towel boys reported today.

The first string looked fine last night in its first practice scrimmage in over two weeks, but Alex Verdova of the junior varsity pulled up with a charlie horse on the first play. He'd just gotten the sawbones' ok on a suspected groin injury.

Trainer Ernie Biggs said he'd give Verdova's leg muscles a working over today and decide then whether Alex would play Saturday.

However, there's no doubt about Mike Cannavino. He'll be on the sidelines with a bruised thigh—and Tom Watson probably will be sitting close by. Watson already had a bad knee when he banged it up again yesterday. Coach Wes Fesler figures it's the same type of recurring injury that knocked out Dean Sensanbaugher last year.

* * *

RAY Di PIERRO wasn't too active yesterday because of his leg bruise, and Joe Whisler's head still feels like Sunday morning after the Michigan game.

Pete Perini also was out of the lineup yesterday after somebody trampled on his non-kicking left ankle Tuesday.

Rain Postpones County Softball Tourney Here

Pickaway County school tournament was postponed on its opening night Wednesday by rain.

However, the opener will be played on the Ted Lewis Park diamond Thursday night, weather conditions permitting. Should the Thursday games be called off, the tourney schedule will be revised, with the opener scheduled for Monday night.

Six county school teams have entered the contest — Darby, Walnut, Monroe, Perry, New Holland and Saltcreek—and two games are on tap for the opener.

Walnut and Monroe are slated to open the affair on the first night at 7:15 p. m., followed by a tilt between Perry and New Holland. Darby and Saltcreek drew byes in the first round.

Champion, second and third place trophies are to be awarded.

Stablemates 1-2 In Feature

AKRON, Sept. 30—Block To Block and Kiminola, entries from the Brown and Gillespie Stables, finished one-two in the muddy running for the $1,200 Ladies' and Lassies' Purse at Akron's Ascot Park yesterday.

The tiring Kiminola was passed in the stretch by her stablemate who also won the opening feature at Ascot last week.

Greenberg Gets Series Reminder

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—A 15-year-old Canton youth, who once gave Hank Greenberg his autograph, had hopes today of securing a couple of free tickets to the World Series.

Last July, Greenberg appeared at a father-son banquet in Canton. When all the other kids ganged the Cleveland Indians vice-president to secure his autograph, Klein surprised Greenberg by offering him a slip of paper with his own name written on it.

"I thought I'd reverse things and give you my autograph," he told the former Detroit slugger.

Greenberg smiled down on the youth and promised him a pair of tickets if the Indians won the pennant. Klein sent a reminder to Greenberg yesterday.

Magazine Hands Out 3 'Belts'

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Three world champions—two of them from Europe—have received emblematic championship belts from Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer yesterday presented the "Ring" belts to France's Marcel Cerdan, middleweight king; Tony Zale, the man Cerdan knocked out; and to a representative of Freddie Mills of England, world's light-heavyweight champion.

Zale's belt was a belated presentation for his title triumph against the then-champion Rocky Graziano last June.

Mills received a belt for defeating America's Gus Lesnevich in a title bout in England.

Bob Feller, the great comeback guy when the Indians needed him in the last gasps of the race, won his seventh straight and his 19th of the year by 5 to 2 over Chicago yesterday to all but clinch it.

Boston and New York also won after suffering virtual knockout defeats on Tuesday, and by this time cling to the merest flicker of hope.

The Red Sox' 5 to 1 victory over Washington and the Yanks' 4 to 2 edge on Philadelphia seemingly served only to prolong the agony.

• • •

WHILE the Indians idled today, Boston was to finish its Washington series with Mel Parnell against Early Wynn and the Yanks were to wind it up with the A's by sending Ed Lopat against Lou Brissie.

Then the Red Sox and Yanks will be idle on Friday and will tangle Saturday and Sunday in season-concluding games with each other.

That means one must be eliminated definitely while the Indians are completing their concluding series with Detroit.

It all adds up to the fact that the Indians must get a tie with one win and must take the pennant with two wins.

The Tigers, using Virgil Trucks or Dizzy Trout on the mound in the first game, then Fred Hutchinson and Hal Newhouser in the next two must beat Bob Lemon, Gene Bearden and Feller.

While Feller was winning a 10-hitter over the White Sox yesterday, Ellis Kinder gave up 11 hits in winning for Boston over Washington and Bob Porterfield scored his fifth win for the Yanks in beating the A's.

• • •

HOWEVER, the rookie needed help in the ninth and both Joe Page and Allie Reynolds were called upon to retire the side. Reynolds served up a double play ball to end it with the bags loaded.

Hal Newhouser became a 20-game winner for the fourth time when he won for Detroit by 4 to 0 over St. Louis.

In the National League, the Champion Boston Braves defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3, but suffered a jolt to their World Series hopes. Outfielder Jeff Heath, who has been going great at bat, suffered a leg fracture sliding into the plate and will be out of the big scuffle starting at Boston next Wednesday.

Cincinnati knocked Chicago back into the cellar with a 5 to 3 win.

The Pittsburgh Pirates moved into third place a half-game behind second-place Brooklyn by trimming the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 1 in a nite game behind Vic Lombardi's seven-hit pitching.

AL Flag Race 'Magic Number' Is Big 'Two'

All American League contenders—Cleveland, New York and Boston—won Wednesday, but the league-leading Indians nevertheless reduced the pennant "magic number" to two.

Any combination of Indian victories or Boston-New York defeats which totals two will give Cleveland its first pennant since 1920.

All contenders have three games left to play.

The standings:

	W.	L.	Pct.	GB	GP
Cleveland	95	56	.629		3
New York	93	58	.616	2	3
Boston	93	58	.616	2	3

Schedule: Cleveland — Thursday, idle; Friday, Saturday and Sunday—single games with Detroit in Cleveland.

New York—Thursday, at Philadelphia; Friday, idle; Saturday and Sunday, single games with the Red Sox in Boston.

Boston —Thursday, at home with Washington; Friday, idle; Saturday and Sunday, single games at home with New York.

Redlegs Buy Montreal Star

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30—Warren Giles, president of the Cincinnati Reds, announced today he had paid cash and a player yet to be named for Veteran Infielder Jimmy Bloodworth of the Montreal Royals.

The second baseman, named most valuable player in the International League this year, batted for a .302 average during the regular season, rapping out 23 homers and knocking in 96 runs.

Giles also announced that Pitcher Johnny Hetki and Outfielder Bobby Usher had been transferred outright to Syracuse. Hetki pitched for Syracuse on option this year and Usher was with Syracuse and Tulsa.

West Indian Dies From Ring Blow

CHICAGO, Sept. 30—A 22-year-old welterweight prizefighter from the Dominican Republic died today after being knocked out in Chicago Stadium.

The victim, the year's second in the same ring, was Felix Antonio Gomez, of New York City and Santo Domingo. He fought professionally as Kid Dinamita.

The West Indian was floored in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round bout by Bobby McQuiller of Port Huron, Mich.

He died less than five hours later in Cook County hospital, where physicians worked feverishly to save his life.

Old Hard Luck Mare Gets Good Ride By Bucks

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30—Ohio State was riding that old hard luck mare as hard as she'd go with at least half a dozen Bucks on the doubtful list or out of the Southern Cal game Saturday, the crying towel boys reported today.

The first string looked fine last night in its first practice scrimmage in over two weeks, but Alex Verdova of the junior varsity pulled up with a charlie horse on the first play. He'd just gotten the sawbones' ok on a suspected groin injury.

Trainer Ernie Biggs said he'd give Verdova's leg muscles a working over today and decide then whether Alex would play Saturday.

However, there's no doubt about Mike Cannavino. He'll be on the sidelines with a bruised thigh—and Tom Watson probably will be sitting close by. Watson already had a bad knee when he banged it up again yesterday. Coach Wes Fesler figures it's the same type of recurring injury that knocked out Dean Sensanbaugher last year.

• • •

RAY Di PIERRO wasn't too active yesterday because of his leg bruise, and Joe Whisler's head still feels like Sunday morning after the Michigan game.

Pete Perini also was out of the lineup yesterday after somebody trampled on his non-kicking left ankle Tuesday.

Jack Jennings hurt his left elbow in the scrimmage but X-rays showed no break. Those same rays showed Jim Hague's broken hand would be ready for Saturday's game—encased in a special cast.

Greenberg Gets Series Reminder

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30—A 15-year-old Canton youth, who once gave Hank Greenberg his autograph, had hopes today of securing a couple of free tickets to the World Series.

Last July, Greenberg appeared at a father-son banquet in Canton. When all the other kids ganged the Cleveland Indians vice-president to secure his autograph, Klein surprised Greenberg by offering him a slip of paper with his own name written on it.

"I thought I'd reverse things and give you my autograph," he told the former Detroit slugger.

Greenberg smiled down on the youth and promised him a pair of tickets if the Indians won the pennant. Klein sent a reminder to Greenberg yesterday.

Magazine Hands Out 3 'Belts'

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Three world champions—two of them from Europe—have received emblematic championship belts from Ring Magazine.

Editor Nat Fleischer yesterday presented the "Ring" belts to France's Marcel Cerdan, middleweight king; Tony Zale, the man Cerdan knocked out; and to a representative of Freddie Mills of England, world's light-heavyweight champion.

Zale's belt was a belated presentation for his title triumph against the then-champion Rocky Graziano last June.

Mills received a belt for defeating America's Gus Lesnevich in a title bout in England.

Rain Postpones County Softball Tourney Here

Pickaway County school tournament was postponed on its opening night Wednesday by rain.

However, the opener will be played on the Ted Lewis Park diamond Thursday night, weather conditions permitting. Should the Thursday games be called off, the tourney schedule will be revised, with the opener scheduled for Monday night.

Six county school teams have entered the contest — Darby, Walnut, Monroe, Perry, New Holland and Saltcreek—and two games are on tap for the opener.

Walnut and Monroe are slated to open the affair on the first night at 7:15 p. m., followed by a tilt between Perry and New Holland. Darby and Saltcreek drew byes in the first round.

Champion, second and third place trophies are to be awarded.

Stablemates 1-2 In Feature

AKRON, Sept. 30—Block To Block and Kiminola, entries from the Brown and Gillespie Stables, finished one-two in the muddy running for the $1,200 Ladies' and Lassies' Purse at Akron's Ascot Park yesterday.

The tiring Kiminola was passed in the stretch by her stablemate who also won the opening feature at Ascot last week.

Hay Lack Is Claimed Possible

Fertilizing Plan To Hold Key Here

Prospects of a hay shortage due to the smallest crop in recent years make Winter and early Spring pasture doubly important to Ohio farmers, Larry A. Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent, said Thursday.

Fertilizer applied in weeks to come will provide quick Fall and Winter feed and earlier pastures next Spring, he declared.

"The estimated 1948 hay crop is 97,635,000 tons, or about 5,000,000 tons below last year's yield," Best quoted the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee. This panel adds:

"Most of this decrease is in Corn Belt states. Iowa's 1948 hay crop is 1,389,000 tons lower than last year. Wisconsin shows a decline of 1,263,000 tons. Decreases in other Midwestern states are: Minnesota, 684,000 tons; Kentucky, 534,000 tons; Illinois, 346; Ohio, 175,000; Indiana, 102,000; and Michigan, 58,000 tons.

* * *

"FARMERS can help lick the hay shortage by liberally fertilizing Fall-seeded rye this year. That will give a good early growth that can be pastured in late Fall and early Winter.

"Legume-grass crops fed with plenty of phosphate and potash this Autumn will give extra grazing days next Spring. That will enable dairymen to get cows out on pasture earlier and cut down on barn feeding costs. Fall-fertilized legumes and grasses come through the Winter in better shape.

"Farmers in Southern Ohio and Indiana, Kentucky and Missouri can have pasture practically all Winter if they use the right legume-grass mixtures, fertilize adequately and handle their pastures carefully. Your county agent or state agronomist can advise you on pasture mixtures and fertilizers best suited to your needs."

Army To Lift Promotion Ban For Officers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—The Army and Air Force disclosed plans today to put the promotion of officers back on a wartime basis by lifting the ban on temporary advancements.

At the same time, the services revealed that new procedures will be substituted for the old methods of effecting these promotions.

The Army regulations, approved by Secretary Royall and Chief Of Staff Gen. Omar N. Bradley, involve promotions up to and including the rank of colonel. They become effective Nov. 1.

Similar action has been taken by top Air Force officials.

The moves are expected to result in only a limited number of promotions to the grades of colonel and lieutenant colonel but substantially more to the major, captain and lieutenant ranks.

Temporary promotions—in effect throughout World War II—were frozen by the Air Force in February, 1947.

The Army banned virtually all temporary promotions at different times for different grades between March, 1946, and March, 1947. Certain medical, veterinary and dental officers were the only classes exempt from the ban.

The new promotions will be made on an Army-wide basis, instead of according to unit, division and branch vacancies.
